Final Day to Help Fill 500 Stockings

Some of the biggest friends of the Colonist 500 Fund are also some of the littlest, and Tuesday they helped drive the total to $13,143.80 — with just one day left to go.

Today, the fund is expected to surpass all previous years. It has never been as high on the second-last day as Tuesday's total of $13,143.

In 1961, best year until this, the final figure was $13,529 — thanks to donations of $3,464 on the last day.

But back to the little friends who help so much. Since the 1965 fund began a few weeks ago, several groups of school children have exercised their ingenuity to raise money for Greater Victoria's poor at Christmas. (See picture, Page 10.)

The 500 Fund each year sends a gift of money to 500 of the area's most destitute families just in time to bring some light into their Christmas time.

Last week three more schools, in individual efforts, raised a total of almost $200 for the fund. Young students of Gordon Head Junior Secondary School contributed an impressive $165. It was raised by holding a sock hop dance and a volleyball game and through collections of money from classes.

Huge Lottery Raid

'Irish' Ring Broken Up

MONTREAL (CP) — Police who seized 5,000,000 Irish sweepstakes tickets valued at $17,000,000 Monday night, said Tuesday they have probably destroyed a lottery operation that extended throughout Canada and included parts of the United States.

Satellites Sprayed Askew

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The upper stage of a Titan III rocket hurtled into orbit as a launching platform Tuesday, but misfired after six hours and sprayed a number of satellites into wrong orbits. The air force reported the upper stage—called a transstage—failed to start its engines a third time. The firing would have given a circular orbit at that altitude and the transstage then was to have ejected four satellites at about 30-second intervals. Instead, the 15-foot transstage continued in a great looping orbital path ranging from 120 to 20,900 miles.

A combined force of Montreal and provincial police raided two suburban Montreal homes and seized the tickets and $180,000 in cash and cheques. Provincial police officials described the operation as "definitely the largest lottery raid in Quebec, at least—and perhaps in all of Canada."

MANY ARRESTS

They said further investigations may lead to the arrest of "many people who were actively selling the tickets." Lists of the sellers also were seized in the raids, police said.

Officials said the two homes were the key distribution centers for Irish sweepstakes tickets. The distribution network, they continued, extended into all provinces and into the north-eastern United States.

Bennett Makes News Doesn't Read Papers

VANCOUVER (CP)—An eight-man jury was excused Tuesday until Jan. 10 in a slander case against Premier Bennett.

Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes adjourned the Supreme Court to hear arguments on a motion by Mr. Bennett's lawyer that is in effect a bid for dismissal of the suit and because of personal commitments.

The suit was launched by George E. P. Jones, former chairman of the B.C. purchasing commission.

FORCED TO RETIRE Mr. Jones was forced to retire by government legislation to retire. He says he was slandered by the premier March 5, 1965, and has since been unable to get another job.

Tom Berger, Jones' lawyer, has said the premier said in the speech: "I'm not going to say anything about the Jones boy. I won't talk about it but I could say a lot. I just want to assure you the position taken by the government was the right one."

Mr. Berger alleged innuendo in the premier's remarks left

Jones victim of rumor and speculation. It did incalculable damage and Jones had not been able to get a job since he was removed from his job by an act of the legislature.

Defence counsel George Murray asked Mr. Justice McInnes to rule whether those words in their natural and ordinary sense are capable of defamatory meaning and whether they are capable of bearing a particular meaning in the plaintiff's pleading of innuendo.

JURY ASSENT He made the request in a motion while the jury was absent and said he will call no evidence in the slander case.

He said if the ruling was in the defence's favor the case would be dismissed.

Mr. Berger read portions of his examination of the premier Nov. 25 in Victoria at a pre-trial hearing.

'Ready to Talk with Salisbury'

Solid Victory For Wilson

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's oil embargo on Rhodesia was approved by a 228-vote majority in the Commons early today in a vote forced by a small group of Conservative opposition members.

Regulations enforcing the ban were passed by 276 votes to 48 — figures reflecting the extent of the so-called "Rhodesian lobby" among Conservatives who opposed the ban.

FORCED VOTE

The right wing Conservative group forced the vote against their party leaders' wishes, and most of the 303 Conservative members abstained from voting.

Government supporters cheered when Cledwyn Hughes, minister of state for Commonwealth relations, disclosed that the United States has instructed an American oil company to divert a tanker due in Beira, Mozambique, today with a cargo of crude oil for Rhodesia.

GOOD RESPONSE Hughes said the response of other governments has also been encouraging.

Earlier, the government won a 27-vote majority endorsement of its handling of the Rhodesia crisis.

This vote, 228 to 272, was forced by the Conservatives on a technical point to underline their mounting criticism of Prime Minister Wilson's Rhodesia policies.

SETS DOWN TERMS

Wilson told Parliament steps are being taken to give the British governor in Rhodesia, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, detailed terms on which he could start discussions with Prime Minister Ian Smith or any other Rhodesian leader.

"The governor is willing to discuss, even with the illegal regime, the mechanism by which Rhodesia can be returned to legal rule," Wilson said.

MAJOR POINTS The prime minister also made these major points in a 30-minute speech:

● Britain will not by itself call for a naval blockade of the port of Beira in Portuguese Mozambique, even if the oil embargo against Rhodesia is broken through that territory.

● Britain would be willing to take part in an international plan to protect the Kariba Dam

Kosygin

Wilson to Pay Visit To Kremlin Feb. 21

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Wilson announced in the Commons Tuesday he will visit Moscow Feb. 21 to 24 at the Soviet Union's invitation in a new effort to settle the Viet Nam war.

But a British official conceded there are no new developments to give any increased hope the latest British peace mission might succeed where its predecessors failed.

The Associated Press reported that Soviet Premier Kosygin, without committing himself to a precise date, was said by qualified diplomats to have undertaken in principle to come to Britain some time next fall.

Wilson said he has had a continuing exchange of messages with Kosygin.

He also told Parliament he now has U.S. President Johnson's solid support in any peace initiative Britain could take. He (Johnson) has his duty to do, but at the same time it is quite wrong to suggest he is not keen to get a peaceful and honorable settlement in Viet Nam.

GIs May Cross Cambodia Border

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state department indicated Tuesday that U.S. military commanders in South Viet Nam have authority to fight across the Cambodian border if it is "essential" for the protection of their forces.

U.S. troop commanders in South Viet Nam have been reported to have authority to pursue enemy forces across the border into Cambodia, or, alternatively, only to fire at such forces if they fled across the border and if they fired on U.S. troops from across the border.

Baby Boy Bore Triplets

LONDON — The bearer of triplets was their brother, a Chinese baby boy, says a report by Dr. Edmund Y. C. Lee, a surgeon at Queen Mary Hospital, Hong Kong, in the "Archives of Diseases in Childhood."

At two months of age he was feeding lustily, putting on weight, and showing all the signs of good health except for one interesting condition. His abdomen had been gradually distending for 10 days — as though he were pregnant.

An abdominal X-ray disclosed the truth and Dr. Lee decided to "open up" and see for himself.

He found, bathing in clear fluid, three living foetuses at different stages of development, attached to umbilical cords to a thin-walled sac arising out of the pelvis.

Though they were later found to have well-formed skeletal, intestinal and nervous parts, they were imperfect, and the surgeon was able to remove them with ease.

The parent-baby's recovery was uneventful, and he was discharged from the hospital eight days later. He has since been in excellent condition.

His experience is an example of a rare slip of nature, known as foetus in foetus. The most plausible explanation of such cases is that both the bearer and the included foetus arise from subdivision of a single fertilized ovum — as happens in the case of so-called identical twins.

(London Sunday Times)

Diefenbaker

Retirement Out Of Question

MONTREAL (CP)—A chipper John Diefenbaker brushed off any thoughts of retirement when reporters raised the subject Tuesday.

The Conservative chief, now 70, told questioners on his return from a Caribbean vacation:

"This retirement business is something that comes up repeatedly whenever there is a lack of matters to be discussed."

Mr. Diefenbaker reflected a moment and, with a twinkle in his eye, added: "In 1966, Mr. Pearson, the prime minister, also will qualify for the old age pension."

Quebec Tory Hits Chief:

Listen to the MPs

MONTREAL (CP)—Georges Valade, the only Progressive Conservative candidate to win a Montreal seat at the last general election, Tuesday night criticized John Diefenbaker after the Conservative leader's stopover here.

"Mr. Diefenbaker should listen a little less to some of his Quebec friends who have never been elected and never will be elected," said Mr. Valade, who was not among a group at the airport to meet Mr. Diefenbaker on his return from a Caribbean vacation.

Mr. Valade said Mr. Diefenbaker should listen more to the eight Conservatives actually elected from Quebec.

Re-elected member for Montreal Ste. Marie Nov. 8, Mr. Valade said there are "serious flaws" in the party structure in Quebec.

He and the other Conservative MPs from Quebec want a structure "more democratically and systematically organized."

He said he was not invited to meet Mr. Diefenbaker, when he passed through here.

The Montreal member—the only Conservative out of 21 MPs from Montreal Island—said the absence of such an invitation is an example of the flaws in the Quebec Conservative organization.

Jones Case

Mr. Jones' lawyer read portions of his examination of the premier Nov. 25 in Victoria at a pre-trial hearing.

The lawyer asked Mr. Bennett if he knew Mr. Jones refused to leave his office and claimed it was illegal for the cabinet to suspend him pending charges in October, 1964, of accepting a benefit from a car dealer.

Mr. Bennett replied that he did not recall knowing about this or being advised of it.

TOO BUSY

"Do you read the papers Mr. Bennett?" Mr. Berger asked.

"Not very often because I'm too busy," the premier replied. "I make the news, I don't read the news."

Mr. Bennett said he had learned early in government life that he had other things to occupy his mind.

"There's lots of newspapers come into my office and my home. I'm saying I don't recall reading it in a quotation."

Mr. Berger then asked the premier if he had read or been advised in January of this year that Mr. Jones was found not guilty of the charge of accepting a benefit.

NO NOTIFICATION

Mr. Bennett replied: "Yes, I know there was something in the press to that effect but I don't really recall the details."

Mr. Bennett said he never received any formal notification of Mr. Jones' acquittal.

Mr. Berger asked the premier about a letter to him from Mr. Jones.

Mr. Bennett said he remembered seeing the letter but did not reply to it.

"I think in our free society a person has the right to reply to a letter or not to reply," Mr. Bennett said. "As premier of this province I claim the same right," Mr. Bennett said.

"Why did the government recommend that Jones be re-elected?" Mr. Berger asked.

GOVERNMENT DECISION

"Because it was the government's decision. The government must accept responsibility for its actions. We have, different from the U.S., the British system of responsible government."

Mr. Berger: "Why did the government recommend this?"

SAME ANSWER

Mr. Bennett: "That's the answer I gave you. Because it was the government's decision."

Mr. Berger: "Did you believe in March last year that Jones was unfit for office?"

Mr. Bennett: "What the government did was to make a recommendation. I have never said anything against his character."

on the Zambian-Rhodesian border. Wilson said this would have to be done with Rhodesian consent, but noted there now was no sign of this.

FORCE RULED OUT

Wilson again ruled out the use of force to settle the Rhodesian independence crisis, and said he had himself reiterated this to Zambian ministers who called on him earlier Tuesday.

He stressed that if Rhodesia returns to constitutional government, there will have to be a short period of direct rule by the governor. This might help reassure those white Rhodesians who feared "early" Negro majority rule, Wilson said.

ANSWERS CRITICS

Replying to opposition critics of his handling of the Rhodesian crisis, Wilson said:

"We cannot wipe off the past five weeks, and all that has happened in the world."

"But the governor can give to Mr. Smith and Rhodesia assurances that we have given many times regarding fears they have that return to constitutional rule will be followed within days, or even weeks, by majority rule."

"If Mr. Smith would say that he will agree to end the illegal regime, provided that there is no majority rule, the governor has authority to give that assurance."

WON'T BACK FORCE

Earlier the Conservatives served notice on the Labor government that they will not back the use of force in Rhodesia.

Conservative Leader Edward Heath warned Prime Minister Wilson his party is opposed to any use of force, which, he said, would lead to conflict between whites and Negroes in the breakaway colony.

He told the Commons in a foreign affairs debate that to solve the Rhodesian independence crisis, the Conservatives would be prepared to deal with Prime Minister Ian Smith's breakaway regime or anyone outside the regime.

HAS REFUSED

Wilson has refused to deal with Smith or his government since its Nov. 11 seizure of independence.

Heath said the government is asking Parliament for unqualified backing of all measures it might take against Rhodesia without qualification. This would include the use of armed forces, if the government decided, to secure a return to legal rule in the breakaway colony.

'Irish' Ring Broken

Arraigned in Criminal Court Tuesday were Mrs. Francis Kelly, 37, of suburban Ville La Salle and her ex-husband Anthony Sullivan, 34, of Dollard des Ormeaux.

Mrs. Kelly was charged with operating a lottery and Sullivan with selling or offering to sell lottery tickets. Judge Rene Thibault granted bail of $10,000 each and the hearing was set for Dec. 28.

SALE ILLEGAL

The sale of lottery tickets is illegal in all Canadian provinces. The offence is punishable by imprisonment for a maximum of two years.

Police Director Jean-Paul Gilbert of Montreal said the raids were the result of Canada-wide police co-operation. The actual tip on the operators came from Toronto morality Inspector William Pilkington, he said.

"This smashes the largest distributor of Irish sweepstakes tickets in Canada."

CO-OPERATION

Provincial Police Director J. Adrien Robert said, "The result underlines the importance of co-operation among all law enforcement agencies."

Inspector Pilkington said his department acted as a clearing house for information that led to the raids.

"This has been a crushing blow to the Irish sweeps. It will mean the re-organization of their entire sales team."

He said the total value of tickets seized in raids in Toronto, Vancouver, Winnipeg and Montreal runs to more than $25,000,000.

Inspector Pilkington said police information on the sweepstakes operation is so complete "that I can anticipate a similar fate for any new operation of this kind."

"It would be indiscreet of me to say we've cleaned up the Irish sweepstakes." But we've put quite a dent in it."

LONG SEARCH

Montreal police reported the raids followed a month-long investigation by two members of the department's social security squad and three provincial police sergeants.

An investigating officer said the lottery tickets recently were shipped by sea from Ireland, in crates alleged to contain table jellies and marked "Produce of the United Kingdom."

Each ticket has a face value of between $3.25 and $3.50. They were scheduled for drawing on horse races to be run in Britain and Ireland next year.

LISTS OF NAMES

J. P. Desrosiers, assistant director of the provincial police, said the names on the lists seized in the raids were those of distributors and other key operators in sweepstakes sales across Canada.

Some tickets had been sold for earlier consignments, but Monday night's haul probably included most of the sweepstakes tickets for sale in Canada, he added.

Final Day for 500 Christmas Fund

Last year these youngsters gave the fund $100.

At Oak Bay Senior Secondary School two student clubs competed in a penny drive to see which could collect the most for the fund.

The Y-Teens Girls Club challenged the Hi-Y Boys and the resultant total of $64.77 represents a contribution from the entire student body.

***

The school doesn't say which club raised more money.

Another group of students from this school is singing Christmas carols downtown to raise still more for the fund.

And don't discount the very smallest.

Elementary pupils of Doncaster School organized a concert Friday and attracted an audience large enough to bring in no less than $30 which they proudly handed over to the fund.

***

The fund must close at 5 p.m. today so cheques can be sent in time for Christmas.

More Russian Help For North Viet Nam

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union agreed Tuesday to give North Viet Nam more technical and economic aid. The agreement also could involve stepped up Soviet military aid.

A brief official announcement made no mention of military aid. But the deputy premiers of the two countries who signed the aid pact spoke of military assistance during an exchange of speeches.

The announcement spoke separately of "supplementary technical assistance" and "additional free economic assistance."

The technical aid was not defined.

The economic aid involved a loan, postponed repayments on earlier loans, and a trade agreement that guarantees no Soviet price increases next year.

No figures were announced but the aid was believed to be sizeable. North Viet Nam has been hard pressed financially because of the Vietnamese war.

Straight Reporting Pearson's Desire

(Colonist Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson called Tuesday for newsmen and politicians to work together to dispel cynicism and disillusionment that is threatening democracy.

These feelings, particularly among young people, are "perhaps the most serious threat to democracy and the political process," he said.

He spoke to about 75 newsmen at a luncheon at the National Press Club of Canada. He urged them to return to "good old-fashioned straight reporting of the facts."

BECOMING REVIEWERS

"Too many reporters are becoming reviewers, the story becomes an analysis rather than an account," he said.

"There is no more important problem facing us today than to remove if we can . . . that feeling of disillusionment and cynicism about politics."

He said press and politicians must resist the increasing temptation to put on a show to get attention.

WRONG CONCLUSIONS

Otherwise, he said, there would be "an uninformed public opinion reaching conclusions on the basis of relative ignorance and prejudice or both."

He stressed the need of the

Tanned John D Home Cabinet Shuffle Scored

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet changes will push the Liberal Party to the right and shove the Canadian development corporation into limbo, Conservative Leader Diefenbaker predicted last night.

The 70-year-old chief held an impromptu press conference at the airport after returning here from a Caribbean cruise.

FULL OF PEP
Tanned and full of pep, he took up where he had left off 10 days ago—whacking Liberals in all directions.

He still insisted that former justice minister Guy Favreau should resign from the post of President of the Privy Council for misleading the Commons during the Dorion debate.

He insisted that there is more reason than ever to demand a full investigation into allegations of election irregularities in the Magdalen Islands.

And he took another swipe at the "furniture boys," former secretary of state Maurice Lamontagne and former postmaster-general Maurice Tremblay.

But it was when he discussed the new Pearson cabinet that he hit top form.

"Having regard to the material available the prime minister did the best he could under the circumstances," he chuckled. "Most of the changes were expected."

But the appointments of Mitchell Sharp (finance) and Robert Winters (trade and commerce) will cause a "very pronounced move to the right for the Liberal party."

JOIN LIMBO

"With Mr. Gordon gone, the Canadian Development Corporation idea will also be absent from the cabinet. . . . It will join the limbo of departed things," he said.

The CDC was proposed by former Finance Minister Walter Gordon to encourage Canadians to invest in their own economy through purchase of its shares.

He was asked if he felt Prime Minister Pearson had "cleaned up the mess" with his cabinet reshuffle.

SEES NO ACTION

"I can see no such action, none whatsoever," he replied.

He said he was amazed at the resignations of Mr. Tremblay and Lamontagne who were described as "the epitome of propriety a month ago during the election campaign."

After launching his usual attack against Mr. Favreau, he ripped into Forestry Minister Sauve who recently held a press conference to defend himself from allegations of election irregularities in the Magdalen Islands.

"The statement was so naive and so nebulous that it aroused a great many more questions than existed before he made it."

NEED INVESTIGATION

"There is more need than ever for an investigation beyond

FIRST SINCE ELECTION

It was the prime minister's first public speech in Canada since the election. But he spent very little time analysing the results.

He said the campaign had taught him something about slogans. (The Liberal slogan was "I'm for a Liberal majority.")

"I learned that a slogan philosophical in concept is not the most effective kind of slogan in an election campaign," he said.

LACKS IMPACT

It doesn't have the impact of "No Truck or Trade with the Yankees," or "4-4-4 or Fight," he said.

But Mr. Pearson claimed he is looking forward to the coming session of Parliament. "I feel just wonderful. I never felt younger or more active in my life," he said.

Streets Clear As Riots Hit

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI) — Rioting erupted anew in downtown Santo Domingo Tuesday for the third straight day.

Motorists fled the area as street mobs threw garbage pills to the streets and erected barricades.

Shut stations of downtown shops slammed shut as the disorders spread but Dominican police supported by Brazilian troops quickly broke up the scattered riots. There were no known casualties or arrests.

Korea Debate Highlights UN Closing

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A heated debate on the Korean question Tuesday night highlighted the closing of the 20th session of the United Nations General Assembly.

The 117-nation assembly worked overtime in an effort to end its session by late Tuesday night or early today after a three-month session.

The assembly was forced into night sittings for the last several days so a final vote could be taken on various resolutions approved in assembly committees.

Tuesday saw approval by the budgetary committee of a record 1966 budget of $121,567,420—$13,094,620 higher than had been recommended for 1965.

SCALE UNCHANGED

The scale of assessments remained unchanged for major contributors. The United States pays 31.91 per cent, the Soviet Union 14.92, Britain 7.21 and Canada 3.17. The scale also will apply in 1967.

The Vietnamese war, though not on the agenda, touched off a series of bitter clashes between the U.S. and the Soviet bloc countries in a number of debates.

During debate Tuesday on the Korean issue, Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko demanded in the main political committee that the U.S. withdraw its military forces from South Korea.

Last Circus

Queen Shares Nostalgia

LONDON (Reuters) — The Royal Family shared the thrills and nostalgia of London's last circus Tuesday night with a giant crowd—despite a protest against the Queen watching a "cruel" show.

With the Queen was Prince Philip and two of their three children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne; her sister Princess Margaret and Margaret's husband Lord Snowdon; the Queen's cousin Princess Alexandra and Alexandra's husband Angus Ogilvy.

LOVE SURVIVOR

The night in the big top was a charity show taking place in the last Christmas season run of London's only surviving circus, run by Bertram Mills.

Television and rising costs have finally driven the show from the city. Mills' big rivals, Chipperfield's, left Britain last year for South Africa.

The Protective Society for Captive Animals protested against the Queen's attendance at the circus.

After a day-long debate, however, the committee approved a U.S.-backed resolution by a vote of 62 to 12, with 29 abstentions. All Communist nations and Algeria opposed it.

BACKED BY CANADA

The resolution, co-sponsored by 11 other nations including Canada, urged the UN to continue its efforts toward reunification and North Korea to comply with UN objectives.

Over-riding U.S. opposition, the assembly condemned Portuguese colonial policy and urged UN members to break diplomatic relations and boycott trade with Portugal.

Harassed Traffic

IF SOMEBODY fired a buckshot blast down Douglas Street at the height of the busy night-time shopping period, it could hardly be more dangerous than the imbecile adventuring of some drivers who race big cars into the area, weaving from lane to lane, screeching to a stop at a red light, and taking off again on screaming tires as soon as the green says go.

The practice of "cutting in," from one lane to another, is another deplorable example of bad and dangerous driving with which every automobile operator in this area is becoming all-too-familiar.

In the first case, that of the downtown speeder, his actions probably are prompted by bravado, an unhealthy desire to draw attention to himself or to impress a passenger or two.

In the second, the weaving driver is either attempting to demonstrate his own prowess and the capabilities of his machine, or he is deliberately harassing others.

In either case the offender—and regrettably he is almost invariably youthful—is risking more than the heavy penalties which can be imposed either under Section 138 of the Motor Vehicle Act or under the Criminal Code of Canada. He is risking the lives of others and serious injury and property loss to those who go lawfully about their business.

What's to be done about these dangerous young men?

One hears glib talk about citizen's arrest and the rights of the public to bring charges. But this is delicate ground for the layman to explore. Few know the paths to take for successful prosecution. In cases of actual collision authority is quickly on the scene and able to assess responsibility and act accordingly. But it is in the area of dangerous driving where the culprit, although he may force another driver into trouble, escapes detection that some sort of remedy should be found.

The operation of police traps is not only difficult and time-consuming for a busy force but repugnant to most people. But by what other means can recklessness be curbed? Sooner or later the speeding driver in heavy holiday traffic will kill someone. It may be in a "drag race" on Rose Street or a "chicken challenge" on Shelbourne, and unhappily it is very likely to be the innocent bystander, or the careful and cautious driver, who pays the greater penalty for someone else's thoughtlessness.

Second Chance

GREATER VICTORIA ratepayers can expect to be called upon very shortly to reconsider the $1,700,000 school construction referendum they so narrowly defeated on Dec. 11.

Only the voters know, each in his own mind, how many of those 850 spoiled ballots—646 of them unmarked—were expressions of resistance to tax increases generally rather than rejection of the schools program explicitly.

Incidentally the plebiscite, which required a 60 per cent majority, failed to pass by only 102 votes, which is something less than half of 1 per cent.

Given a second look at the Greater Victoria School District's dilemma, ratepayers are unlikely to dig in their heels. In 1964 the board got their approval for a $6,700,000 building program, but the pyramiding cost of construction overtook the work, and to complete it the additional $1,700,000 was sought on Dec. 11. Further delay in proceedings will mean additional costs beyond the school board's control.

School district superintendent John Gough calls the present situation a crisis, with the building program disrupted. He points out the board has two choices: to accept the narrowly lost decision in the referendum and curtail its construction or to appeal again to the ratepayers.

It is generally assumed that a costly six months' delay in re-submission to a plebiscite is required—unless the terms of the referendum are amended, in which case it could be presented after three months. But such may not be the case.

Those are periods of suspension under the Municipal Act, whereas the present situation is governed by the Public Schools Act. Or so supporters of an early vote contend.

A decision by the minister of education may bring the referendum back to the ratepayers early in the new year, and in the interests of economy and for all practical purposes, the sooner the better. This is a bill that must be paid eventually, and postponement only adds to its weight.

Hospital Alternative

THE ALTERNATIVE plan for hospital construction financing in the Greater Victoria region suggested by Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich offers at least a glimmer of hope of a way out of the impasse created by rejection of the Sooke-to-Sidney two-mill tax for this purpose.

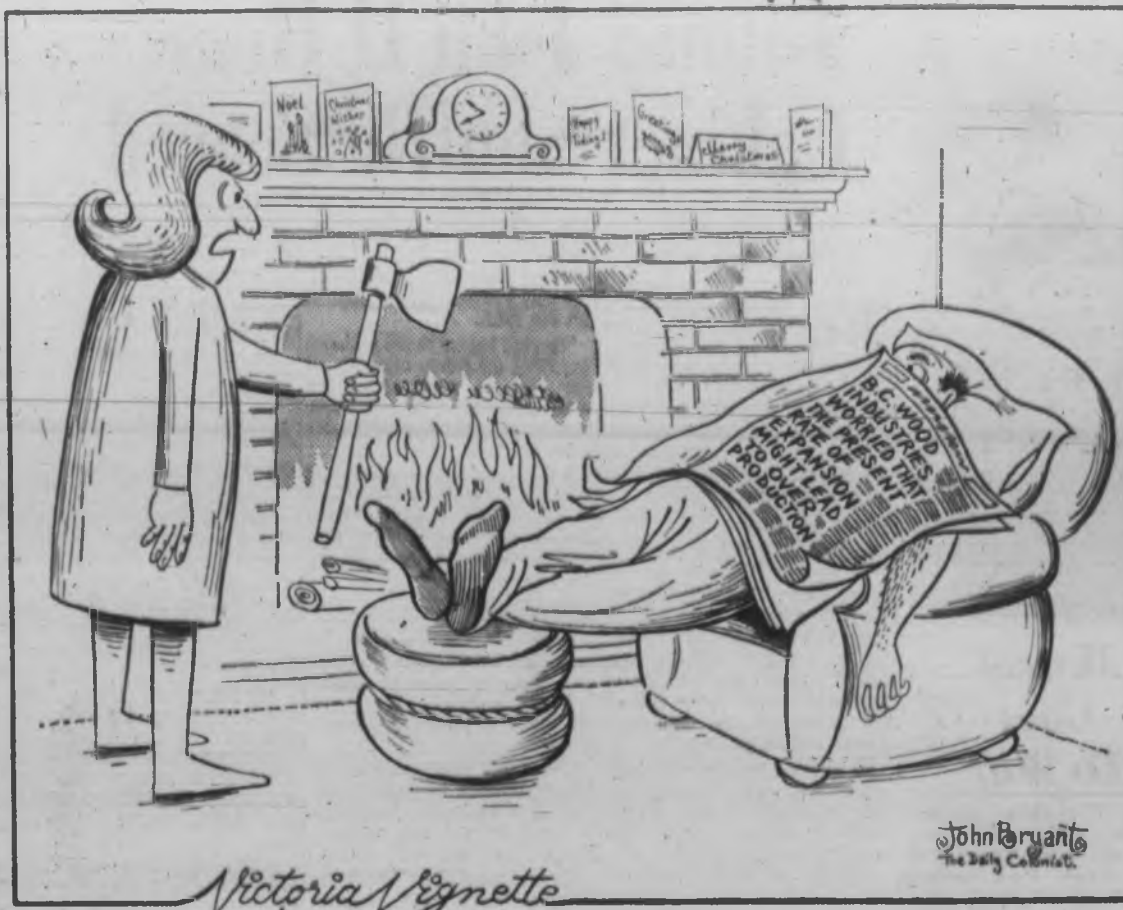

Instead of being tied irrevocably to an annual regional levy, the property-owners in each municipality according to Reeve Curtis' ideas would vote on money bylaws to raise the funds for the expansion and renovation of hospital accommodation. This, it is to be noted, would cost them no less in the long run than the regional tax, presuming the formula for sharing between the community and the provincial and federal governments remains unchanged. But it would give them the opportunity to say yes or no to specific programs.

If the unorganized areas—Sooke, Metchosin, Langford, Colwood and View Royal—were to band together as a hospital district, these too could make their fair contribution, as they showed considerable willingness to do in the referendum on the regional tax plan.

The troublesome question here of course is what would happen if the ratepayers of some municipalities voted in favor of the hospital capital bylaws and the property-owners of others rejected them.

This looks like a serious flaw in the only alternative to the regional-board concept that has yet been put forward. But with the shortage of hospital beds already of worrying proportions and growing worse as the population increases, anything that gives promise of solving the predicament is worth exploring diligently.

Perhaps other suggestions will be forthcoming when the Victoria and District Hospitals Planning Council holds its meeting early next month to consider new courses of action. This one, however, deserves the study it will undoubtedly get.

Central Intelligence Agency

Almost a State Within a State

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN from Washington

THE CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE Agency will soon be 20 years old. Although it looks the snob appeal of the British Secret Service and the cloak of the Deutsches Bureau, and the air of interesting horror that surrounds Russian Intelligence, and even though it has never produced a James Bond, it is nonetheless one of the great organs of American government.

CIA was created by an executive order of President Truman in January, 1949. It was intended to be a special weapon of the president and the National Security Council, and would supply the sort of information necessary in the cold war that was then hotting up.

But it is now a vast organization, a rival of the state department and the Pentagon. It is free from all but the most cursory surveillance by Congress, and its budget is safely buried in the files of the defense department. It has a gigantic building in the Maryland-style outside Washington which bears no title and so attempts to direct you there. It is true, however, that carved on it are the words "The Truth Shall Make Ye Free."

It is, of course, one of the supreme examples of Parkinson's law in action. It has grown of itself. It has extended its responsibilities from the original austere and classical concept of an information-gathering organization. It now does research and analysis on a vast scale. It numbers broadcasts and publications in 60 languages and deals with six million words a day.

It has spies abroad—and who does not? But this is dismissed as a mere 20 per cent of its operation. It is responsible for counter-espionage overseas. And it conducts at times what seems to be private political warfare in favor of the status quo.

If all this is not quite fair, it is inevitable. The CIA is at once secretive and blindingly in the public eye. Its clever young men in Ivy League suits attend all the best parties in Washington, and are immediately identifiable because they hesitate to say precisely for whom they work.

An extraordinary number of operations have been held at the door of CIA. There was the overthrow of the Lachinose Iranian premier, Mossadek, in 1953. There was the overthrow of the left-wing dictatorship of Cuba in 1954. There was the Bay of Pigs disaster in Cuba in 1961, in which the CIA planned the invasion by Cuban refugees and trained troops, and lost disastrously perhaps because President Kennedy was not as ruthless as they. There was the decision to invade the Dominican Republic in 1965.

More than that, there have been rumors of operations in Singapore, in Iraq and Egypt and Indonesia. And then there was the tunnel that ran under Berlin to tap the wires of the Soviet military headquarters. (That one really happened.) And there were the U2 flights over Soviet territory which destroyed the summit meeting between Eisenhower and Khrushchev.

In addition they are said to have offered $2 million to two Syrians who were asked to deliver a Soviet patrol vessel. The Syrians were hanged. They are said to have rigged elections in Laos, to have made General Dioubs self-powerful in the Congo, and to have organized the white mercenaries there. (This last is certainly untrue.)

But there is the weird fact that they act almost as a state within a state. Despite presidential directives, CIA operations are virtually independent within U.S. embassies overseas. They finance research institutes in U.S. universities and overseas. This information is invaluable and has done as much as anything to stop the process of nuclear blackmail foreign affairs. They supply the president, each day, with a brief and neatly-bound digest of what they think he should know. The state department refers to them as "spooks." The Pentagon has set up what is almost a rival firm in the Defense Intelligence Agency, which itself employs more than 3,000 people. The FBI still conducts extensive intelligence operations in South America.

The most famous head of the agency was Mr. Allen Dulles, brother of John Foster Dulles, the secretary of state under Eisenhower. He lived and courted publicity. He tended to explain the First World War by having an operative in Geneva, and an obscure Russian had come to see him. Mr. Dulles had said that he was too busy, and the Russian's name turned out to be Lenin. Since then Mr. Dulles has seen everyone. His head, however, rolled after the Bay of Pigs.

The CIA is controlled by a quiet admiral—William E. Harbo, and the evidence is that it is matured and is under control. Of course, such an organization is bound to be suspect in a democracy. And, of course, it is impossible to keep it decently secret in the Westminster manner in a town like Washington. But this almost indefinable thing has become a major symbol of the United States abroad. And its discreet young men represent their country as truly as the state ambassadors and the wordy senators.

Just over a year ago, the images of three noble British rulers were taken down in Delhi. They were the Lords Willington, Chelmsford and Irwin, who now lie amid weeds and behind a corrugated iron fence in an unfrequented part of the city, awaiting a promised but less than resurrection elsewhere. As soon as this deed was done, Indians protested against it and the Indian government, whether it was particularly moved to defend Lord Irwin. As one of them pointed out, Irwin was the first viceroy of India to be convinced of the justice of India's demand for self-rule and was respected by the Mahatma Gandhi himself.

It may have been some comfort to the shades of these displaced lords to note that they were removed with gentleness by the laborers assigned to the job. Indeed, these humble men held a small religious ceremony of their own before they set about the work, though some practical Indians say the object of these rites was not to propitiate the spirits of the departed great ones but to ensure that in the operations to follow the dead weight of petrified imperialism fall on nobody's naked foot.

It is also the fact that those who agitated most vehemently for the removal of Lord Irwin, in particular, have suffered most from their success. His Lordship was ideally placed, close to the main entrance of Parliament House, for those who wished to demonstrate against anything objectionable in the current policies of the government.

On such occasions the leaders of mass protest found it highly convenient to climb Lord Irwin's plinth and from there, with one arm round the ex-viceroy's indifferent shoulders and the other beating the air for emphasis, to address the mob below. Now, alas, there is nothing on the plinth except the short steel rod that ensured Irwin's stability and any rattle-rocker who stations himself there today does so at considerable risk.

Of all the plinths likely to be left empty, none carries with it greater risks of error than the one now occupied by the late King-Emperor George V. His site is the best in Delhi, as it was meant to be. From this eminence it was intended by those who unveiled him that he should look "forever" out over a capital "peculiarly his own." (It was in his reign that New Delhi was built as the capital of British India.) And oddly enough there seems to have been a change in the last 12 months in the common choice of Great Indian to occupy this most royal of plinths.

A year ago it was universally conceded to Nehru. Today Indian public opinion seems to favor Gandhi. But some think it should go to Netaji Bose, the Indian civil servant, who once led an army alongside the Japanese to drive the British from his homeland. Others incline towards a huge and general memorial to Indian heroes who have died in the war against Pakistan.

Faced with so terrible a choice, the Indian government may well decide to leave his Imperial Majesty where he is. His continued presence can be rationalized on grounds of high principle. No sophistry would serve to protect the government if, after banishing the King, it picked the wrong substitute.

It is a pity that the King, who was so much loved by the Indian people, should have been so treated. But it is a pity that the King, who was so much loved by the Indian people, should have been so treated.

It is a pity that the King, who was so much loved by the Indian people, should have been so treated. But it is a pity that the King, who was so much loved by the Indian people, should have been so treated.

Quemoy's Significant Slogan

By OTTO VON HARBURG
from Kien Men, Republic of China

THIS is an uneven day, when the Communists, solidly entrenched a few thousand yards from here, send from time to time a volley from their artillery positions at the strong points of Quemoy, Little Quoy and the Rock of Taitan. Foreign visitors left yesterday evening, and the place belongs to the Chinese, soldiers and civilians. Life continues as usual; it is a long time since one has become accustomed to the fire of the heavy batteries of Amoy, Asau or Waihu.

In the middle of Quemoy rises a dark, volcanic hill overlooking the coastal plains and the China mainland beyond. On one of its steep cliffs four Chinese characters are painted in glowing red color. They are: "Don't forget what happened at Chu."

A phrase meant to remind the reader of old Chinese history. More than 2,000 years ago the province of Tsian was the kingdom of the people of Tsi. It was invaded by the men of Ch'ing. One after the other all the cities of Tsi submitted to the rule of the oppressor. Only Chu refused to capitulate. Its defenders had dwindled to a few hundreds. They played their last chance in a night battle where, in order to give the impression of a large number, they attached torches to the tails of their herds. The enemy, taken by surprise, withdrew in panic. The victory of Chu marked the beginning of the restoration of the Kingdom of Tsi and the end of the glory of Ch'ing.

The slogan has a special significance for this place, last free corner of the province of Fukien. It is here that the Communists suffered their first defeat. Quemoy demonstrates, day after day, that Mao is not almighty. It is from here that night after night the courageous commandos go out to visit the coast of China, get in touch with the resistance forces and bring back valuable information.

Quemoy, like Chu in its time, represents freedom for millions of China.

In our parts of the world there are many who feel that the bravery of the off-shore islands is ridiculous. These are the people—"experts" who never visited the places on which they issue pompous verdicts—who demand a "realistic" policy on China, the same kind of "realism" which was the main argument of the collaborationists in the Second World War. Seen on the spot, the stand of the Chinese Nationalists does not seem to be in vain. There are good reasons to believe that the Kuomintang retains serious chances.

Communism China, which looked formidable only a short while ago, is no longer what it was in 1963. Its military forces are dispersed, from the Soviet borders to Lachin and from the coasts of Fukien to the mountains of Szechuan. The interior front also has to be held, since dissatisfaction is widespread. Neutral observers have noted the explosive impact which the revolution of the transistor has had on China. For a long time the regime forbade the sale of the little machines; finally it gave in, but only after having set a prohibitive price: the equivalent of two months' pay of an average worker. Nevertheless transistors are sold everywhere. And the Chinese listen to Radio Taiwan, Manila and Tokyo.

Furthermore, Chiang Kai-shek represents for the aged the good old times. In China, contrary to the West, the elder generation retains its authority and holds public opinion. A British technician told me that his young Cantonese foreman, whom they knew him well, would come to him in secret to ask about the Free Chinese leader.

The Chinese Nationalists are no adventurers. They will not risk dragging the world into a general war. But in view of the fluid state of affairs in the Far East every solution becomes possible, especially when backed by something as vital and solid as Taiwan. In politics there is no certainty; there are only probabilities. Facing the unfortunate panorama of the Bay of Amoy against the background of the mountains of China, one will come to the conclusion that the miracle of Chu can happen again in the twentieth century. It is no less unlikely than what took place three centuries before Christ, since, even in our nuclear age, courage and faith continue to make history.

Ottawa Still Waiting

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government still is waiting to hear officially whether the provinces will go ahead with medical care insurance programs which qualify for the federal offer to pay half the costs, officials said here Tuesday.

The provinces had originally said they would tell Ottawa by the end of the year.

NEW MINISTER

The possibility of issuing a reminder to them about this commitment is expected to be one of the first matters to come before Health Minister MacEachen as he moves this week into his new portfolio from the labor department.

Federal planners want to know as early as possible how many provinces will be involved so they can make financial and legislative plans for the parliamentary session opening Jan. 18.

WORK TO BE DONE

If medical care insurance is to be available on a national basis by July 1, 1967, as proposed by Ottawa, a good deal of legislative and administrative work must be done by federal and provincial governments.

Federal authorities say they are confident the provinces' favorable reaction last July to the federal proposals will be translated into legislative action.

CONFERENCE SEEN

Commitments from the provinces to do so probably will mean a full-scale federal-provincial conference early in the new year, possibly between Prime Minister Pearson and provincial premiers.

Billion-Dollar Contract for Lockheed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. defence department made it official Tuesday and awarded Lockheed Aircraft Corp. the biggest single military contract in history — $1,363,327,000 — for development of the CSA, the world's largest jet plane.

The Marietta, Ga., firm will build 58 of the new jet transports. An additional $500,000,000 will be spent on engines for the planes under a separate contract to be awarded General Electric.

INVESTIGATING LEAK

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara announced Sept. 30 that Lockheed would get the CSA contract. Several congressmen are investigating possible leaks of news of the contract award before McNamara's announcement.

The day before the announcement, stocks of Lockheed, Boeing Aircraft Co. and Douglas Aircraft Corp., fluctuated on the New York exchange.

McNamara announced at the time that the award would be made under a new "total package" concept, with one contract going to Lockheed for "development, production, and lifetime support of the aircraft — including spare parts and ground support equipment."

The same concept also is being applied to the construction of a new, fast-deployment cargo vessel for the navy.

LUMP COSTS

Aim is to place greater responsibility on defence contractors for the long-term performance of their products and to lump together costs that formerly were spread among several firms.

The CSA will weigh 350 tons and will carry loads of 250,000 pounds as far as 3,200 miles.

McNamara said the new fleet

Globe For Sale?

TORONTO (CP)—The Star says Max Bell of Calgary, chairman of FP Publications Ltd., is reported negotiating to buy the Toronto Globe and Mail.

THE FRONT-PAGE STORY SAYS:

"Recurrent rumors that ownership of the Globe and Mail is about to change hands were given new credence today when Globe publisher Howard Webster and Globe lawyer and director J. Maitland Macintosh were believed to be in conversation in Winnipeg with Maxwell Bell, chairman of FP Publications Ltd."

"As chairman of FP Publications, Mr. Bell heads the Calgary Albertan, Vancouver Sun, Ottawa Journal, Victoria Times and Colonist and Winnipeg Free Press."

"Mr. Webster bought the Globe and Mail in 1956 when he outbid 12 other prospective purchasers with a price reported to be $10,900,000."

"Since that time, there have been frequent rumors that Webster has discussed the sale of the Globe."

"A telephone call to Webster's room at the Fort Garry Hotel in Winnipeg was answered by Globe lawyer Macintosh, who offered to have chairman Webster return the call."

Macintosh said he also would take a message for Max Bell. "Shortly afterwards, the occupants of the Webster room instructed the hotel staff to intercept all telephone calls."

"In Calgary, the office of FP Publications reported that Mr. Bell was in Winnipeg."

Jackie's French Chef Flees

By PAUL COATES

WASHINGTON — The French chef imported to the White House by Jackie Kennedy is deserting his post.

In a burst of temperamental characteristic of both his trade and his national origin, Rene Verdon announced that he would no longer slave over a hot stove for Lyndon and Lady Bird.

But alas enfants, and words to that effect, let's not panic. We must keep calm in this time of emergency. Our proud nation has survived crises in the past, and it will survive again.

Frankly, I didn't approve of Mrs. Kennedy hiring him in the first place. A French chef didn't quite fit into a White House whose walls still echoed the haunting refrain of Lawrence Welk, left over from a previous administration.

Besides, there's something vaguely un-American about it. Why a French chef in our White House? After all, you don't find Charles de Gaulle hiring Aunt Jemima to cook chicken soup in the Elysee Palace. And listen, a good hot bowl of chicken soup wouldn't hurt de Gaulle right now.

LBJ's Grits Too Much And Frozen Foods, Too!

Anyway the argument is academic. Chief Verdon is leaving because, as he said, "I was very busy to have frozen foods in the president's house."

If he had limited his farewell address to that one terse observation, the whole thing might not have been blown up to the proportions of an international incident.

But hell hath no fury like a French chef scorned, and Verdon couldn't resist adding: "I think it is better to do something nice than to have boiled potatoes . . . Boiled potatoes put in the freezer for a long time, lose their flavor."

He further violated security by disclosing that a recent White House menu included turtle soup with whipped cream on top. Great! You can imagine what the commie propagandists will do with that little gastronomic atrocity story.

Finally, he remarked: "I don't think you can economize on food in the White House." That, apparently, was the key to the problem. It seems to confirm rumors of a personality clash between Verdon and Mrs. Mary Kalitman, who was brought in from an Austin hotel as food co-ordinator for the executive mansion. Since there's a news blackout on what triggered the final episode, we can only assume it might have gone like this:

Mrs. Kalitman could have walked into the kitchen and said, pleasantly: "Cookie, y'all got a moment?"

Verdon winced, took a deep breath and replied: "I ask you once again, ma chérie. Please do not call me 'cookie'."

"And don't ma chérie me, mah friend!" Mrs. Kalitman snapped. "We're having a little musicale for Ayub Khan, and all ah want to do is go ova the menu."

"Ah! Une musicale," Chef Verdon beamed, in a sudden switch of mood. "C'est bon. Brahms!"

"No. Bee. Molly-Bee. Backed up by the Sons of the Pioneers." "C'est la vie," the chef shrugged. "Anyway, for ze occasion I prepare a lovely coq au vin."

"That sounds right nice," Mrs. Kalitman nodded. "And with grits."

"Mais non!" Rene cried in horror.

"Lyndon," the lady reminded him, "likes grits." "Non! Non! Non!" he shouted, pounding his fists on the stove. "It is bad enough, turtle soup and whipped cream. But coq au vin avec grits? Nevaire does Rene Verdon do such a thing!"

He tore off his apron, stomped on it, and muttered: "I am—how you say—have had it."

And, as the scene ends, we pan back for a long shot. The French chef is storming out of the White House, satchel in one hand, pots, pans and skillets in the other, just as a Chicken Delight truck pulls up at the delivery entrance.

Nuclear Role Still Up in Air

Erhard Leaves with No Firm Commitment

By JOHN HEFFERNAN

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—Chancellor Erhard ended his talks with President Johnson Tuesday without getting firm U.S. commitment to do anything about helping West Germany play a bigger role in wielding the nuclear power of the Atlantic Alliance.

This did not seem to disturb Erhard and the West German delegation.

In contrast to the urgency displayed in the past, Erhard was agreeable to Johnson's suggestion that decisions be postponed and that the issue be thoroughly aired in the special NATO committee formed at last month's ministerial conference.

JOINT FLEET

Among the ideas with which Erhard came to Washington was a proposal for co-ownership of a fleet of Polaris submarines, which would be provided by Britain and the U.S.

West German sources Tuesday put much less emphasis on this particular idea than had been reported from Bonn before the delegation left.

Erhard gave public expression to his flexible approach by stressing to a National Press Club luncheon that he is not tied to any specific project, and wants to work towards a common solution that would satisfy West Germany's desire for a "say" in nuclear affairs.

The problem of nuclear sharing no doubt will be discussed further when the defence ministers of Britain, the United States, West Germany, The Netherlands and Italy meet here next month as members of the working group on nuclear planning of the special NATO defence ministers committee. No other NATO countries seem interested.

WILL BE MAIN FORUM

The committee, formed in Paris last month at the suggestion of Robert McNamara, the U.S. secretary of defence, is expected to be the main forum for the future nuclear discussions.

When and whether these discussions will lead to any decisions is uncertain.

West German sources were unwilling to commit themselves even to saying that their government wants an actual physical share in a nuclear weapons system, although that still is alleged to be Bonn's desire.

U.S. HOPE

It is the U.S. hope that somehow, the nuclear arrangements NATO eventually makes will satisfy the Soviet Union that they are not in violation of any agreement to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons.

In this regard, Erhard's spokesman said that a U.S. veto over the use of nuclear weapons is explicit in any of the projected schemes.

Tucson Girl, 19 Gets Jail Term

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—A 19-year-old former Tucson girl accused of involvement in the slaying of another teen-ager was sentenced to four to five years in prison Monday.

Mary Rae French, 19, of Belton, Tex., burst into tears in the stairway outside the courtroom. She received two concurrent sentences on charges of counselling and compounding a felony and being an accessory to the murder of Allen Rowe, 15, of Tucson.

TAKEN TO DESERT

Miss Rowe disappeared after leaving her Tucson home May 31, 1964. Miss French told authorities the Palo Verde High School girl was taken into the desert and killed. Her defence counsel Jack Redhair told Superior Court Judge

Robert Royston that Miss French had remained silent 18 months because of the influence of "an older man who professed love for her."

Charles Howard Schmid, 27, faces first-degree murder charges in the death of Miss Rowe and the slaying of Gretchen Fritz, 17, and Wendy Fritz, 13.

BURIED BODY

Police said Miss French and John Saunders, 19, told them they helped bury Miss Rowe in a desert area the night she disappeared. Miss French originally was charged with murder. She pleaded guilty to the reduced charges.

Jesus Casts Out Evil Spirits

The Miracles of Christmas

by John J. Stewart

To the great sorrow of his family and friends, a man of Decapolis had become mentally deranged, possessed of devils that tormented him by day and by night, so that he had no peace of mind. He lived in a hell upon earth.

Eventually this unfortunate became so violent and uncontrollable that it was necessary to bind him with fetters and chains. This indignity made him even more infuriated. With demonic strength he tore loose from the chains and angrily broke the fetters to pieces.

He ran naked in the street, snarling like a ferocious beast.

Several times he was recaptured, but no chains could hold him.

Finally the bedevilled man was driven up into the wilderness, among the caves, along the desolate southeast shore of the Sea of Galilee.

Then one day Jesus and the Twelve, crossing by boat from the west shore of Galilee, and beset by storm, landed in this forsaken spot.

As Jesus climbed alone into the mountains, the wild-eyed demoniac rushed down fiercely upon him. In a loud, dreadful voice he cried out, "What have I to do with thee, Jesus, thou Son of the most high God? I adjure thee by God, that thou torment me not!"

The apostles looked up in fright from their ship, but Jesus calmly stood his ground. "What is your name?" Jesus asked.

"My name is Legion," came the shrill reply, "for we are many."

"Come out of the man, thou unclean spirit!" commanded Jesus.

Then the legion of devils implored the Master that He would not cast them into the depths of the sea, nor out of the country, but rather that He would permit them to enter into the bodies of a herd of swine that could be seen grazing in the distance.

"And forthwith Jesus gave them leave. And the unclean spirits went out, and entered into the swine, and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the sea, and were choked in the sea."

ers fled into the city, many people came running out to see what had happened.

There to their astonishment they found the lunatic "sitting, and clothed, and in his right mind."

The man asked Jesus for permission to stay with Him. But Jesus advised him to "Go home to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee, and hath had compassion on thee."

And so he whose sanity and happiness had been restored by this miracle of the Christ returned home, and gratefully he "began to publish in Decapolis how great things Jesus had done for him. And all men did marvel."

Bogus Bills Clipped

RICHMOND HILL, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police raided a beverage room here Monday night and arrested two men on charges of conspiring to manufacture counterfeit U.S. money and Canada Savings Bonds.

Police said grandiose plans had been made for printing $10,000,000 worth of bonds and funneling money $20 and $50 bills to the underworld in the U.S.

'GOOFY' SCHEME

One officer described the scheme as "absolutely goofy."

Charged are Joseph Marc Jean Theriault, 41, of Montreal and Carl Uteck, 44, of Thornhill, Ont.

The arrests followed a five-week investigation involving an undercover agent, a former employee of the attorney-general's crime laboratory.

He told police last month he had been asked for technical assistance in manufacturing counterfeit money for shipment to Switzerland.

Police asked him to play along with the idea, learning all he could.

Teachers Blacklist Board

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—Teachers here who boycotted a salary arbitration hearing said Tuesday they will invoke a form of blacklisting against their school board.

The teachers said they will notify all teachers' associations in Canada and Great Britain that they do not consider there is a contract between North Vancouver Teachers and the school board.

They will ask prospective teachers to check with the B.C. Teachers' Federation before applying for a job here.

The teachers said they will return by cheque each month any raise granted them for 1966 by the arbitration board, whose decision is binding on both sides.

The arbitration meeting Monday was boycotted by the teachers to protest a move by school trustees to establish a metropolitan salary scale covering all teachers in Greater Vancouver.

The teachers say a metropolitan agreement would depress salaries and be the forerunner of an eventual provincial salary scale.

They say a provincial salary scale would reduce them to civil service status.

Teachers now bargain with individual school boards. If agreement is not reached the matter is referred to compulsory arbitration.

School trustees say that teachers prefer individual bargaining so they can use raises in one district as a lever to raise salaries in another.

A 1965 amendment to the Public Schools Act permits salary agreements on a zone basis if all school boards and teachers agree.

At Monday's arbitration hearing only one representative of the North Vancouver teachers put in an appearance but he said he had come as an observer only.

Church of England Disagrees

Minister Spurns Oath on Bible

LONDON (AP)—The Church of England declined Tuesday to back a minister who refused to swear on the Bible in court.

"Where the oath is accepted as the legal practice of the land, we accept it too," said a church spokesman.

At Leamington Monday, Rev. Patrick Ashe, 50, vicar of St. Mary's Church, refused in court to swear on a Bible.

He was a prosecution witness in a case in which a man was found not guilty of a charge of fraudulently converting money belonging to his landlady.

When the Church of England minister was asked to take the oath he said: "No, I can't do it."

Asked why, he said: "My refusal is based on Jesus' words in Matthew V."

The passage in the new English Bible reads: "You are not to swear at all—not by heaven, for it is God's throne, nor by earth, for it is His footstall." The passage ends "Plain 'yes' or 'no' is all you need to say. Anything beyond that comes from the devil."

After some discussion and references to the Bible and law books, the clerk allowed the vicar to "affirm."

At Cold Lake

Water Plant Sought

COLD LAKE, Alta. (CP) — This community about 225 miles northeast of Edmonton Tuesday announced plans to seek a $15,000,000 heavy water plant for which Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. will guarantee a market for sale at a fixed price.

Mayor Charles Skinty of Cold Lake said his community is on the shore of a large body of water, Cold Lake, which would be a valuable cooling agent for the plant's operation.

Earlier, the Northern Alberta communities of Lac la Biche and Peace River announced they would seek to have the plant built in their communities.

Atomic energy was forced to reopen tenders for the plant earlier this month when Dynamic Power Corp. of Calgary failed to meet a contract deadline to build a plant in Estevan, Sask.

Atomic energy announced last week they are negotiating with Canadian General Electric to build a plant. Atomic energy says it will guarantee a fixed price for sale for 10 years.

Teen-Age Girl Driver Hurt As Small Car Flipped Over

A 19-year-old girl received head injuries when her small English car flipped over on its side and skidded on Bay Street Tuesday afternoon.

Kathleen Flood, 928 Bay, was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital and discharged.

She was in collision at Bay and Cook at 1:20 p.m. with a car driven by Margaret Shield, 3854 Blenheim.

Seven-year-old Terry Mathews, 770 Market, received injuries to his right leg when he was in collision with a car driven by Charles Chapman, 2112 Henry, Sunday, at 12:45 p.m. Tuesday at Quadra and Spruce.

He was treated at St. Joseph's and discharged.

HURT IN FALL
Construction worker Arnell Weins, 2833 Lake End Road, is in good condition in St. Joseph's with chest, hip, elbow and abdominal injuries.

Mr. Weins was injured Monday when he fell through a hole in the roof at a building project at 46 Crease.

Mr. Weins, an employee with Farmer Construction Ltd., fell 30 feet to the ground.

HIT BY CAR
Mrs. Lulu Lees, 77, is in satisfactory condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital. A pedestrian, Mrs. Lees, 919 St. Patrick, received a broken pelvis and internal injuries in a collision with a car at Windsor and St. David Friday afternoon.

The car was driven by Gerald Dohan, 57 Beach Drive.

In 1962 miners started in awe as 21 camels were brought to Yale as a means of transport for supplies to the Cariboo. The experiment was unsuccessful.

The camels scared horses and their hoof pads were unsuited to the rocky trails. But at least one is known to have survived until 1965.

Five people received minor injuries in a collision on Patricia Bay Highway Sunday.

Police said the injured were Gertrude Fraser, Gable Terrace; Jessie Dudley; Heather Hilliard, 77 Beach Drive, and her children Robin, 14, Andrew, 13, and Martha, 8.

The drivers were identified by police as Mrs. Hilliard and Ralph Fraser, 808 Falsia.

While police and wreckers were clearing the scene, there was a rear-end collision a short distance down the road. No one was injured.

The drivers involved were Donald McIntyre of Abbey, Sask., and Valuable Everett, 3846 Belmont.

Walkout Off

TORONTO (UPI) — Fear that the CBC might be faced with a wildcat walkout that could throw its nightly national television news off the air was eased at least temporarily Tuesday.

CBC management met with a group of news employees, some of them union members and some not, and although all issues were not completely resolved, some progress was made, according to Cecil Smith, director of information services.

"Any idea of a wildcat strike is off," Smith stressed.

Further meetings were scheduled for next week and early in the New Year.

Vopos Nab U.S. Girl

BERLIN (UPI) — American officials Tuesday announced the arrest by Vopos in East Berlin last month of an American woman student on undisclosed charges.

She was Mary Helen Battle, 25, of Oak Ridge, Tenn.

American officials said she was arrested Nov. 24.

She was a student at West Berlin's free university and had been in the city for two years.

The American mission here got word of the case from an East Berlin lawyer assigned to her defence.

The charges were not disclosed but in the past American students have been arrested for trying to help refugees escape.

Meanwhile a secret trial began in Potsdam in East Germany, of two American negroes accused of trying to help refugees escape.

Trustees Call for Overhaul Of Student Grading

VANCOUVER (CP) — School trustees here want to junk the "distribution curve" system of grading students.

The curve system automatically commits one in four students to a "D" or "E" grade in every subject. It has been under widespread attack by teachers and parents.

The Vancouver school board will ask city principals what they think of a letter grade system based on the child's individual progress.

The letters A-B-C-D-E would still be assigned, but in future on the basis of the teacher's considered opinion of the student's progress in the subject and on the basis of daily work, examinations and tests.

Trustee Mrs. Eva New, chairman of a special committee on report cards, said the distribution curve tends to grade only on examination results.

Under the curve, five per cent of students in a class get an A rating; 20 per cent get B; 25 per cent get C-plus; 20 per cent get C; 15 per cent get C-minus and the remaining 25 per cent get D or E.

Shore Showed Coutu He Was a Tough Westerner

By RED SMITH

NEW YORK (PNS)—Bill Jennings, who is president of the New York Rangers, asked Eddie Shore how many stitches he'd had. Jennings spoke casually, the way you might ask a man whether he wanted soda or water. Just as casually, Shore said, "I never counted them all because there were some inside I didn't know about. I counted 987 outside."

There may be people today old enough to read but too young to remember Eddie Shore, the toughest hockey player who ever lived. When he served 105 minutes in the penalty box in the winter of 1927-28, he beat all previous miscreants by half an hour and every minute was earned. Today the old villain of the Boston Bruins runs a minor league club in Springfield, Mass. He is 63, raw-boned, with huge hands and ample beak.

He massaged the beak. "This was broken 18 times," he said. He stroked his right cheek. "This I don't know how many times." He pulled up the left points leg, showing a big scar on the inner side of the knee.

"A skate went in here," he said, "and came out on the other side of the thigh. Two days later I was on crutches and we were on the ferry to Vancouver. A player grabbed one crutch from me and started hobbling around on it. Another guy grabbed the other and started clowning. Then each one threw a crutch overboard. We were playing that night."

"He couldn't walk without crutches," Bill Jennings said, "but he could skate."

A guy mentioned a name, Bill Coutu. "Oh," Eddie Shore said softly, and a hand went up to his left ear.

"I'd played two years as a pro in western Canada," he said, "and now I was trying for a job with Boston. In practice, Billy Coutu kept hitting me. I told him, 'Look, all I want to do is play. I'm here to get a job. I don't want your job. I just want a job.'"

"He said, 'All you Western guys think you're tough.' I weighed about 185 then, he was around 215. I said, 'I can pick you up and throw you 10 feet every day of the week and twice on Sunday.' It went on that way.

"One morning he came tearing in and took a shot and came on and hit me. I turned and caught him with my left shoulder. He bounced back about eight feet and went down, got up and sank down, got up again and went down. The third time he went down he stayed down.

"His head got smashed into my ear and torn it off. There was just a little piece of skin holding it on, and the doctors wanted to cut that away. 'The ear's all smashed,' they told me, 'it will never grow back again.' I said, 'I'll grow back, sew it on,' but they wouldn't.

"So I had the trainer tape my ear to my neck down here and I went out looking for a doctor. That was 11 in the afternoon. It was 5:00 p.m. when I found a man willing to sew it back.

"He said, 'What kind of anesthetic do you want—gas or a local?' I said, 'First I want a mirror.' They gave me a mirror. I could hold it in my hand and the doctor said, 'Now what?' I said, 'Just start sewing.'"

"I watched while he stitched, and I was hurting bad. He got finished and I said, 'That last stitch is wrong, take it out. You left a little pucker there.' He said, 'You're a surgeon? You know more than I do?' I said, 'Yes. I know more than you do. Take it out.' He took out the last stitch and did it over.

"I wore a helmet for about three weeks, but it came out all right."

"The ear isn't even cauliflowered," a guy said. "And the stitches don't show."

"No," Eddie said. "I put ice on it right away after it was torn off. I always heal very fast."

"Whatever happened to Billy Coutu?" he was asked. "I'm sorry to say," Eddie said, "he wasn't so good after that. He lasted half a season."

OUTDOORS with Alec Merriman

Vancouver Island hunters are all mixed up about the advisability of shooting does and fawns and just now, after the past rather poor hunting season feelings, are running high.

It was an emotional meeting Monday that heard assistant fish and game director Don Robinson explain the results of the past deer hunting season and attempt to justify his department's stand in allowing an antlerless deer shooting season.

The battle against doe shooting, which became exceptionally bitter on the southern island in the 1950s when Robinson, as regional game biologist, introduced doe shooting to the island, is on again.

Robinson won the first round at Monday night's Victoria Fish and Game Club meeting when a motion to call for the closing of a doe and fawn season next year was handily defeated.

But among those who helped defeat the motion there were several who got up and explained that they were really against a doe season, but that they felt that management of game should be trusted to the game biologists.

Private discussions after the main meeting showed that the fight against antlerless season is far from over. The fish and game club executive is split right down the middle on the issue.

Robinson was non-committal on plans for next year's seasons. He explained that regional game biologists will make the recommendations.

But, Vancouver Island hasn't got a regional game biologist any more since Don McCaughan left for greener fields—like so many B.C. biologists are doing. The fish and game clubs are certainly united on that issue. They plan to badger Recreation Minister Kiernan until Vancouver Island first and British Columbia in general get a full quota of biologists again.

After the first of the year Vancouver Island will also lose its regional fish biologist, David Hurn, and so far no replacement is in sight.

There will be no biologists in the field on Vancouver Island and that is certainly a reason for concern in this day and age.

Robinson indicated to the meeting that the fish and game branch has no thought of relaxing its policy of allowing antlerless shooting.

"If the fish and game branch has lost the confidence of the majority of hunters, then the fish and game branch will have to go out in the field to explain and educate. . . . We manage the deer the way we do because we have the support of the majority of hunters," he said.

"Sometimes education is very close to brain washing," retorted Bill Pearsall who has been fighting doe shooting since it was first suggested. "Did the fish and game branch ever think this (no antlerless season) is what the people want?" he asked.

Robinson predicted statistics will show the Vancouver Island deer harvest for the past season down between 20 and 25 per cent, to between 18,000 and 21,000 deer, compared to the 1964 harvest of better than 25,000.

He estimated the deer population was down about 15 per cent because of die-offs after the severe 1964-65 winter.

Carry-over of fawns last winter, he said, was 20 to 22 per cent, compared to 22 per cent in 1964, 34 per cent in 1963, 37 per cent in 1962 and 34 per cent in 1961.

He said take of deer through access gates was down about 29 per cent and hunters were down about 27 per cent in the past season.

He said 35 per cent of Vancouver Island deer hunters get no deer, 26 per cent get one deer and 38 per cent take 80 per cent of all the deer.

If the mild winter continues, he predicted, hunters on Vancouver Island will shoot substantially more than 20,000 deer next season.

"The past season wasn't good, but it sure wasn't a catastrophe," he said.

Robinson said deer population in hunted areas on Vancouver Island is about 150,000, with the annual turnover of around 50,000 in average years. That means that on the average 50,000 will die each year whether shot by hunters or not. He didn't think that to stop doe shooting would make a big difference to the ratio of die-offs.

He said Vancouver Island is British Columbia's favorite deer hunting area, but warned that deer range is slowly deteriorating.

Eighty-five per cent of those who buy hunting licences on Vancouver Island, hunt deer.

"Within the lifetime of most hunters here, the three-deer limit will become a thing of the past," he said.

He indicated that even sooner will come management of the deer in smaller units—say districts between two major rivers. "There will be specific regulations more in line with local conditions. There will be different seasons in small areas."

He said the bad effects of over-harvesting are not so bad as the effects of forestry and other uses of forest lands for deer, but this would not be economical in terms of forestry, fish and other important factors to be considered.

Marcetta Lead At Five Points

Victoria Maple Leafs may be having their troubles of late, but Milan Marcetta hasn't slowed a bit.

Marcetta had three goals and three assists for player of the week honors in the Western Hockey League and opened up a five-point lead in the scoring race, the biggest margin he's enjoyed yet.

The Leaf centre has 18 goals and 22 assists for 40 points, five more than Billy McNeill of Vancouver Canucks. His goal total is good for a second-place tie with Los Angeles veteran Leo Labine, one behind teammate Bob Barlow.

Chiefs Still Not Winners, But Improvement Is There

By JIM TAYLOR

When you've had a league pulled out from under you, when you've been forced into an exhibition schedule, when you're short a big man and play in near empty gyms, you measure your success in degree of improvement.

And on that basis, Victoria's Haida Chiefs are a success, because they're improving on all fronts.

MUCH BETTER

They proved it last night at Central Junior High School, while being beaten 77-59 by UBC Thunderbirds. The same club that passed them, 97-38, in Vancouver was only seven points up with four minutes left, and the margin probably would have stayed around that figure had Chiefs shown more poise in the face of a pestering zone press.

Chiefs led, 29-23, lapsed and gave up 15 straight points, but were still well in it at the half, trailing 42-37.

MUST BE GOOD

But the Thunderbirds have too much Bob Barazzoli, and they've got a kangaroo named Steve Spencer who left the Chiefs hopelessly outclassed on the boards. Barazzoli, who plays so well even coach Peter Mullins has admitted he isn't bad, scored 29 points, 13 from the foul line.

So the Chiefs lost again. Still, they go into the New Year knowing they are a much better senior basketball team than they were when the season started.

Ken Gregory and John Lauvaas, up from Victoria Chinooks, have proven they are senior players. Chuck Bennett, who scored only three points, played his best game since joining the club. And if the mistakes are still there by the handful, at least the handful seems to be getting smaller.

Chiefs still need a big man. Rumor has it that they might be getting one, if the B.C. Amateur Basketball Association okays a pending deal.

They need a better guard. They need a better forward. They need a better center. They need a better team.

They need a better season. They need a better year. They need a better future.

They need a better chance. They need a better shot. They need a better goal.

They need a better life. They need a better love. They need a better dream.

They need a better world. They need a better peace. They need a better hope.

They need a better future. They need a better past. They need a better present.

Agar's Club Set to Play After Strike

SASKATOON (CP)—A four-day strike by 16 members of the Saskatoon Blades ended Tuesday and George Agar, manager-coach of the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League club, placed four players on waivers.

Agar declined to comment on his dismissal of Al Popoff, George Trochimiuk, Bob Johnston and Dwight Clunie.

The strike started after Blades objected to what they termed a pay-reduction scheme that would cut wages in half if the club continued to lose. Under league rules, players get a maximum of $200 a month.

Blades are holed in last place in the eight-team circuit with only one win in their last 15 starts.

Russians Rebound In Saskatchewan; Humble Caps, 11-2

REGINA (CP)—The touring Russian national hockey team rebounded Tuesday from a loss to the Canadian national team and battered Regina Caps of the Western Canada Senior Hockey League 11-2 in an exhibition game before 4,866 fans.

The victory improved Russia's record on the club's tour of Canada to six wins in eight games.

One of the tourists' defeats was a 6-1 whipping by Canada in Victoria Monday night. The other was a 2-1 defeat by Montreal junior Canadiens, who added five players from the central Professional Hockey League and Jacques Plante, former standout goaltender in the National League, for the game.

ONE HAT TRICK
Victor Polupanov directed Russia with three goals. Veteran wingers Alexander Almetov, Anatoly Firsov and Vladimir Alexandrov potted two each. Single tallies were recorded by Boris Mayorov and Anatoly Ionov.

Bev Bell, awaiting reinstatement as an amateur after a lengthy professional career that ended last season with Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League, scored one Regina goal. The other, in the second period, was notched by veteran Red Stevens.

Russia led 5-0 after the first period and 9-1 after 40 minutes.

STRENGTHENED
Caps, who share second place in the WCHL, picked up Bell, George Senick and Dale Anderson of Saskatoon and George Hunchuk of Moose Jaw for the game.

Almetov opened the scoring in the first minute and Alexandrov made it 2-0 before Polupanov got his first two goals on power plays.

Caps dominated the first half of the second period until Stevens ruined Victor Zinger's shutout hopes. The Russians responded with four goals in the last five minutes of the period for a 9-1 lead and it took five minutes for Len Kneisinger, who made 47 stops, to keep Russia to 11 goals.

AT THE 19th With Harry Young

The weather forecast for the holiday weekend is for a continuation of mild conditions. The prospects for a green Christmas are good to say the least. This may not please everyone, but for golfers, at least, it is just what the doctor ordered.

On Monday 146 players are due to tee off for the 11th Daily Colonist Christmas Tree tournament at Uplands, and from that club comes the report that the course is in good shape; a trifle wet in spots but nothing that a few days of dry weather won't cure.

How different it was just a year ago! Colwood the venue for the 1964 event was deep in snow and the Arctic winds were still blowing so hard that it was impossible to play the event.

The tournament was switched to Uplands, but here too the white powdery mantle refused to budge and on Christmas Eve, the Daily Colonist was forced to call the event off—the first time this had happened in ten years. The interruption has been a bitter pill for the Christmas Tree event, but apparently merely served to whet the appetite. A final count has shown that there were 204 applications for places in the draw and that only those who mailed their applications on the day the form appeared in the Colonist could be admitted.

To those who were unsuccessful the Colonist and the Victoria District Golf Committee expresses its deep regret that more could not be included in the popular event. The draw which has already been published calls for a 8:30 start. Everyone should complete the round by about 2:45 and it is hoped that the prizegiving will get under way in the clubhouse shortly after 4 p.m.

All players are asked to return their cards, and there is a special incentive to do so. Santa Claus will be at the clubhouse to accept the cards and as he does so he will hand over to every player a special gift from the Bay, which is again co-operating with the Colonist in providing the day's hospitality.

In the clubhouse, club manager Frank Baxter has plans for a real old-fashioned roast beef luncheon which comes to participants with the compliments of the Daily Colonist. The tarted Tom Hamilton, who for 11 years has been closely associated with the tournament will be again at the halfway mark to give a true Scottish greeting and to reinvigorate the players for the second nine holes.

The district medals stay in the laps of the defenders as a result of Sunday's play at Victoria Golf Club.

In the open event, the replay between Art Donaldson and Dave Fanthorpe of Gorge and Doug Munro and Jay Wilson of Victoria produced another keen finish.

The home club men, as in the previous game, got away to a flying start and were two up after two holes. Donaldson and his partner then took 5, 6 and 7 to go one up, and established a two hole advantage at the 11th.

The Victoria challengers got one back with a birdie two at the 13th, but a birdie four at the 17th gave Gorge the victory by 2-1.

The junior buttons were also a replay and once again the holders came through by 2-1. Successful were Roger Bishop and Al Cliff. They beat Cedar Hill's pair M. Grass and W. Spedel.

There will be no buttons play this weekend, but the matches will be resumed on Jan. 2.

Next open challengers are from the Ardmore club, and next juniors are A. Glover and W. Doan of Gorge Vale. Both matches will be at Colwood.

District secretary Len Derman informs me that a check of the scoring in the first winter medal shows that Gordon Jones of Gorge Vale should have been credited with third place. His aggregate of 225 put him just one stroke behind Ricky Kent, the runner-up, and one ahead of Lex Sutcliffe. Cecil Strachan playing at Victoria Golf Club Thursday holed out with a chip shot for a two at the 13th and then holed out in one at the 14th. To make the feat even more notable the holes were cut in small temporary greens.

Rocket Speaks Up

Hockey Is Improving

TORONTO (CP) — Maurice (Rocket) Richard, former star with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, doesn't think the calibre of play in the NHL has diminished.

"I think they're playing as well as they did 10 years ago, maybe even better," Richard said Tuesday. "Boston has gone back but that's nothing new. Hockey is better now than it ever was."

Richard retired after the 1960-61 season. In 978 scheduled games he scored 344 goals and 421 assists for 765 points. He added 52 goals and 44 assists for 126 points in 131 playoff games.

Richard felt that Jacques

Plante, former goaltender with the Canadiens and New York Rangers, should not have retired.

Plante was in goal last Wednesday night to help the Junior Montreal Canadiens defeat the touring Russian national team 2-1.

GOOD AS EVER
"I think Plante could help at least a couple of teams in the NHL. From what I've seen, he's just as fast as he ever was."

Richard also had a word of praise for winger Eddie Shack of Toronto Maple Leafs.

"Many people ask me about Shack. He's a good hockey player when he's not trying to be a clown. This year I think he's trying to improve himself. He's not using crazy on the ice and he's scoring goals."

Shack has scored 13 goals and added five assists for Toronto this season. Last year he scored five goals.

"He can help that Toronto team," Richard said. "He's big and strong and when he doesn't get silly, he's a good hockey player. I think he proved that this year."

Vienna Fails To Get Help For 1972 Bid

VIENNA (AP) — Vienna's hopes of staging the 1972 summer Olympic Games were shattered Tuesday when the Austrian government failed to agree on whether to give the city financial support in its bid for the games.

Since Vienna needed money from the government for the project, the cabinet's failure to guarantee support meant the city will not be a candidate. Montreal recently announced its intention to apply for the 1972 summer games. The 1968 summer Olympics will be held in Mexico City.

Rookie Bears Make All-Stars Brown Only Unanimous Pick

NEW YORK (AP) — Green Bay Packers and Baltimore Colts each placed four men on the all-National Football League team selected for The Associated Press by a 42-man committee of sports writers and sportscasters, three from each of the 14 league cities.

Halfback Gale Sayers and linebacker Dick Butkus, the Chicago Bears' rookie stars, also made the team.

UNITAS THERE

Jim Brown of Cleveland Browns was the only unanimous choice, taking his place at fullback in a backfield that also included John Unitas of Baltimore at quarterback, Jimmy Orr of Baltimore at flanker and Sayers at halfback.

Dave Parks of San Francisco, the league's leading passer, was a standout as a split end.

In addition to Unitas and Orr, Baltimore placed Jim Parker at guard on the offensive team and corner back Bob Boyd on defense.

The Packers had only Forrest Gregg at guard on offense, but landed Willie Davis at end, Herb Adderley at corner back and Willie Wood at safety on the defensive unit.

RETIRED CHOSEN

Pete Retzlaff, Philadelphia Eagles' veteran, won the tight end job over Chicago's Mike Ditka and Baltimore's John Mackay.

Cleveland's Eastern Division champion had Dick Schafrath at offensive tackle in addition to Brown, and the Bears placed corner linebacker Joe Fortunato on the first team along with Sayers and Butkus.

Sayers, who set a league record with 22 touchdowns, edged Timmy Brown of Philadelphia for the halfback position and Butkus, the big bonus player from Illinois, edged Ray Nitschke of Green Bay from his usual middle linebacker spot.

TWELVE REPEATERS

Of the 22 players on the offensive and defensive teams, only 12 were repeaters.

Center Mike Ungs of Minnesota Vikings, Unish, Brown, Parker, Schafrath and Gregg also made the 1964 offensive club. Tackle Bob Lilly of Dallas Cowboys safety Paul Krause of Washington Redskins, Fortunato, Davis, Adderley and Wood were back again on defense.

Other players named were: Quarterback—John Unitas, Baltimore; Running back—Jimmy Orr, Baltimore; Linebacker—Dick Butkus, Chicago; Linebacker—Joe Fortunato, Chicago; Tight end—Pete Retzlaff, Philadelphia; End—Willie Davis, Cleveland; End—Herb Adderley, Baltimore; End—Ray Nitschke, Green Bay; End—Paul Krause, Washington.

Although Unitas was injured twice during the year and missed the last two games of the regular season after undergoing a leg operation, he was going to be a starter for the Colts.

Coach Vince Lombardi of Green Bay shifted Gregg back to his old tackle post in a late season shuffle of the offensive line, but the veteran made the team at guard, teaming with Parker. Schafrath's partner at tackle was a new face, Bob Brown of Philadelphia, a second-year man from Nebraska.

The deep defensive combination of Adderley, Boyd, Wood and Krause accounted for a total of 27 interceptions.

Defence All-Star Is Next in Line

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Colts dug deep to get a standby quarterback for Tom Matie, a halfback who is scheduled to do their signal-calling Sunday in the playoff game against Green Bay Packers for the National Football League's Western Division championship.

With regular John Unitas and the standby, Gary Cline out of action with injuries and drafted Ed Brown not eligible for play-off play, the Colts had to have someone ready in case anything should happen to Matie.

Coach Don Shula let on Bobby Boyd, all-star defence halfback.

Like Matie, who came from Ohio State, Boyd hasn't played quarterback since his college days. Boyd was picked because he once quarterbacked for Oklahoma.

So it will be Matie, who will have a list of plays on a wristband for easy reference, as the starter and Boyd, who would probably have to improve standing by.

City Police Criticized In Handling of Call

Failure of the police to conduct themselves properly led to a melee outside 1543 Morley on Nov. 27, defence counsel Digby Kier said in central magistrate's court Tuesday.

Mr. Kier is appearing for Ralph and Robert Roy, who have pleaded not guilty to causing a disturbance outside the Roy home, 1543 Morley.

The Roes and a third brother, Kenneth, have also been charged with assaulting a police officer. And Ralph Roy faces a charge of obstructing a police officer.

TRIAL SET

Trial on these charges will be held next month.

Mr. Kier submitted the police made a number of mistakes the evening they called on the Roes.

"It is my submission that the evidence of the police is not too creditable," he said. "They overstepped the bounds allowed them by law."

WHO SPOKE FIRST

He said the defence evidence was that the first swearing was done by a policeman.

"If there was shouting and swearing (outside the house), there is no direct evidence that anyone heard it," he said.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett submitted the disturbance began when the police went to leave.

MAN CHARGED

Larry Preston has been charged with the October break-in at Standard Furniture, 737 Yates.

Preston, 3920 Quadra, was remanded to Jan. 17, for plea and election.

Preston was charged with breaking into Standard Furniture between Oct. 22 and 26.

Preston is also charged with having in his possession a coffee percolator, an electric knife and a television set worth more than $50.

Bail was set at $1,000.

WAITRESS 'WALLOPED'

Waitress Josephine Emsley said she was "walloped" on the back by a woman she had asked to stop using dirty language.

Sharon Saamis, address not given, has pleaded not guilty to assault.

Mrs. Emsley said she was a waitress at French's Restaurant, 766 Yates, Oct. 15.

She said she asked Miss Saamis four times to stop using the language. After the fourth time, Miss Saamis followed her behind the counter.

'I HITT UP'

"I asked her if she wanted to fight," Mrs. Emsley said. "She said she did, so I shut up. I didn't want to fight."

Mrs. Emsley said she walked up to the front of the restaurant and was struck on the back.

"I just about fell into the bread box," she said.

BEST OF ENEMIES?

Miss Saamis was standing behind her, she said, and there was a ketchup bottle on the floor.

The defendant had worked at the restaurant and "we weren't particularly good friends," Mrs. Emsley said.

The trial will continue Thursday.

HUSBAND LECTURED

A shoplifter's husband was lectured by Magistrate Osher, Anita Bowick, 833 St. Charles, was placed on $250 bond for six months. She had pleaded guilty at an earlier hearing to shoplifting at Eaton's and Woolworth's.

Magistrate Osher told her husband: "If you had acted the part of a man and taken charge of your family, this would never have happened."

BUT RESTRICTED

Driving privileges were granted John Fisher, 1069 Costin, who had been found guilty of impaired driving at an earlier hearing.

Fisher was fined $350 but allowed to drive between 6:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Monday to Friday for business purposes. His licence was otherwise suspended for six months.

Shortest Day Bit of a Trial

By BOB PETHICK

At 5:41 p.m. I felt a bleak twinge in the backbone. Suddenly it seemed darker.

The reason was that winter had officially begun and it was the shortest day of the year.

Well, there I was burdened down with all this knowledge and dying to share it with someone—but how do you do it? Rush up to someone and say, "Sir, do you realize this is the shortest day of the year?" Or approach some parent-laden female and inquire, "Madam, had you noticed that winter is here?"

The reaction might have been interesting but there was no guarantee of safety.

So keeping the facts to myself I trudged back into the office with a certain feeling of superiority.

While it didn't make any difference to anyone, except people with superior knowledge like me, what actually happened was that the sun had dipped to its lowest point in the skies and because of the position of the earth's axis, the sun shone for fewer minutes of any day of this year. They probably didn't notice, either, that the weather got colder for start of winter—because it didn't, actually. Sometimes superior knowledge can be a trial.

Coroner's Jury Told

Massive Injuries Killed Newsman

Vernon Ellis Lacey died in St. Joseph's Hospital, Dec. 15, of multiple internal injuries which caused a massive hemorrhage, a coroner's jury was told Tuesday.

Mr. Lacey, 23, a Canadian Press reporter, was taken to hospital after a car went wild and crashed in Beacon Hill Park's Lovers' Lane, near Dallas and Cook, just before midnight Dec. 14.

He was pronounced dead by Dr. John Hough, shortly after his arrival at hospital.

Hospital pathologist Dr. Garth Walter said Mr. Lacey had fractures of ribs, lumbar vertebrae, skull, left arm, and right leg, and extensive internal injuries.

He was in fair condition at press time.

The inquest was adjourned to Jan. 11 in the Law Courts building. The body will be flown today to Kindersley, Sask., for funeral services and burial.

The pathologist said the injuries could have been caused by a "direct force" at his left side.

INTERNAL BLEEDING

Dr. Walter said Mr. Lacey died of the "traumatic injuries" and the resultant internal bleeding.

The inquest was adjourned to Jan. 11 in the Law Courts building. The body will be flown today to Kindersley, Sask., for funeral services and burial.

New Medical Plan For B.C. Staff

The 60,000 employees of the B.C. government will start the new year with a completely rewritten medical plan.

It will bring benefits into line with those provided by the new B.C. Medical Plan.

Other clauses have been rewritten for the sake of clarity or to incorporate policies already adopted.

Headache Leads To Robbery Clues

A headache led city detectives to some equipment they believe connected with Sunday night's safe-cracking at the Victoria Curling Rink, 1952 Quadra.

A resident of Queens Avenue said he had a headache and was looking out his window at 1 a.m. Monday. Two men were silhouetted against the skyline on some rocks behind the rink, he told police.

He heard about the safe-breaking the next day—about $1,500 was stolen—and notified police.

A money bag, three electric detonators, four electric drill bits, one sock and one roll of tape were later recovered near the rocks.

The resident said he had earlier seen a man walk through backlots from Pandora to Queens.

Price Must Come Down

Athletic Park Plan Passes First Hurdle

A $672,000 reconstruction plan for Royal Athletic Park was approved in principle Tuesday.

But $104,000 must be trimmed from the price if it is to come within city estimates.

One way the total may be cut is to dispense, for the present, with the $100,000 professional floodlighting system.

All ground installations for the lighting would be put in place but the 10 120-foot towers would not be built for a year or so.

USE OLD LIGHTS

Meanwhile, the present floodlighting system would continue to be used.

Before submitting the planning job to the engineering firm of A. B. Sanderson and Co. Ltd.

some months ago, council decided to pay for the rehabilitation with money from the McPherson estate.

Legislation is to be introduced at the next session of the provincial legislature to free $568,000 from the legacy, which has not yet been officially turned over to the city.

WOULD SEAT 4,000

The plan, as explained Tuesday by S. P. Oakes, assistant chief engineer for the engineering firm, envisages seating 4,000. There would be two covered stands, one for soccer seating 1,750 and a second, smaller one, for baseball.

In addition to the covered stands, there would be open bleacher areas.

SEPTEMBER DEADLINE

No matter what plan is accepted or how the present proposal is modified, construction will start about April 1 and finish in September of next year.

All construction will be of reinforced concrete and stands will have cantilever roofs. Sporting groups have been in constant consultation with council committees on plans and requirements for the park almost since the old stands burned down in October of 1964.

NEED SUPPORT

Aldermen who heard the plan explained during a committee session were not happy about the bench-type, backless seating proposed. It was decided that at least part of the seats in the main stand should have backrests, even though this cut capacity down to 1,300 or fewer.

In addition to the stands, bleacher areas, playing fields (baseball diamond, soccer pitch and practice field) provision has been made for the usual concession areas, washrooms and utility space.

WILL PAKE COST

Mr. Oakes, Herbert Warren, parks superintendent, and other city officials will work the plans over in the hope of bringing the total cost down.

Mayor Wilson said, when questioned, that he saw no reason why more McPherson money could not be funnelled toward the project if it became necessary.

Esquimalt

Registrar to Hear Oaths of Office

Medical Bags Recovered

City police have recovered two doctors' bags which were stolen from parked cars over the weekend.

The bags belonged to doctors Patricia Johnson, 620 Poul Bay Road, and T. A. M. Peel, 774 Richmond.

Police said only part of the bags' contents were recovered.

Esquimalt's new reeve and councillors will be sworn in by Supreme Court registrar B. J. B. Morahan at a ceremony in the municipal hall at 7:30 p.m., Jan. 3.

Reeve-elect Ray Bryant said Tuesday it would be the first time to his knowledge that council had been sworn in by a member of the legal profession.

To be sworn are the reeve, incumbent councillors Gerald Horne and Arthur Mebs and newcomer Roy Elphick.

The meeting is a formality to conform to the Municipal Act. There will be no council business discussed.

Coffee will be served after the ceremony.

Bulbs Watched, Bulbs Snatched

Mr. and Mrs. Derick Stratford put the lights on their live Christmas tree outside their home at 1754 Kings, then drove their children around to admire the lighting schemes of other Victoria homes Tuesday night.

When they got home, their tree was dark—50 bulbs had been unscrewed and stolen.

Mr. Stratford said he thought it was a pretty cheap trick, and that the bulbs were worth about $25. Footprints around the tree indicated it wasn't the work of children, he said.

Board Promises Discussion

No Line-Holding Pledged On University '66 Fees

The board of governors of the University of Victoria can't promise to hold the line on fees next year but did promise to "discuss the situation with the Students' Council before any decision is reached."

The promise was made Tuesday in a press release following a Monday night meeting with representatives of the university's Alma Mater Society.

At the meeting the society presented a brief urging that fees "must be considered in the light of student ability to pay."

CONCERN SHARED

The board's release said its members share the concern of the students over the upward trend in fees and promised to maintain its efforts to hold the line.

The 1966-67 budget has already been submitted to the provincial government and the board's finance committee has placed the students' views before Education Minister Peterson. The proposed budget does not include an increase in fees. "However, no firm figure can be set until provincial and federal government grants for operating costs are known," the release said.

WITHHOLDING PLAN

The students' brief referred to the student vote in November in favor of withholding $56, the amount of this year's increase, from the second term fee payment "until such time as the fee level for 1966-67 is announced."

"The objective of this action is to focus public and political attention on the problem until such time as the government makes known the amount of its grant to the universities," the brief said.

REQUESTS

The brief requested:

● The board of governors to recommend to the provincial government an increase in the operating grant "which would allow for consideration of a reduction in tuition fees."

● The board to receive a delegation from the students' council in September, 1966, in order that students may make recommendations regarding preparation of the budget before it is submitted to the government.

● Extension of the deadline for late payment of second term tuition fees until mid-March. "It being understood that this extension would only apply to the $56 portion of the fees."

● That the board inform the students' council when the amount of the operation grant from the provincial government is known "and that the tuition fee level be announced as soon as possible."

NO EXTENSION

"We consider it imperative that this information not be withheld until after examinations as was the case last year."

SMALLER

He told council the original plans were for a 40-foot by 30-foot pool, but because of the costs the committee had decided on a pool 30 feet by 60 feet.

The pool has been planned for the municipality's centennial park.

The chairman said department of health regulations set standards for swimming pools and adequate auxiliary buildings.

UNHEATED

He said the pool would be unheated, and would have a maximum bathing load of 130 people.

The committee recommended a bowling green be built near the pool at a future time.

Some members of council expressed concern over costs to maintain the pool.

After a lengthy discussion council decided to meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday to further discuss the proposed project.

Smoke—No Fire

George Gajski, 1823 Pembroke, was quickly smoking some venison in his smoke house Tuesday morning when the Victoria Fire Department arrived.

A neighbor had seen the billowing smoke and had feared the worse.

Swimming Pool Possible

By JIM BRAHAM

Central Saanich centennial committee has proposed a $30,200 swimming pool as its municipal project, but it will come under close scrutiny of council before gaining approval.

The committee presented the plans for the pool to council Tuesday night, and asked the municipal heads to reach a decision on the project as soon as possible.

John Cockrill, chairman of the project committee, pointed out that Jan. 31 was the deadline for the plans to be submitted to the B.C. government.

He told council the original plans were for a 40-foot by 30-foot pool, but because of the costs the committee had decided on a pool 30 feet by 60 feet.

The pool has been planned for the municipality's centennial park.

The chairman said department of health regulations set standards for swimming pools and adequate auxiliary buildings.

Guests Sing Carols

The Quins Nichol Auxiliary to Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped were hostesses for the staff of Goodwill Enterprises at a Christmas dinner in the Moose Hall.

Carols were sung by the Guests, led by Rev. E. W. S. Gilbert of the Anglican Church. Mr. Owen Fowler (Ah-Fu-Yu) entertained with his magic tricks. Presents were distributed from the Christmas tree. About 80 attended this event.

Christmas In Jail

Mrs. J. L. Brens Wins Spur

The recent meeting of the Arbutus Toastmistress Club had a patriotic flavor when members chose "This Canada" as the evening's theme.

President Mrs. T. F. Howe welcomed two guests, Mrs. N. Bryce and Mrs. E. Jean Wallace.

Topicmistress Mrs. Peter Small called on five members to describe how they would travel to and spend their time at Expo 67. Taking part were Mrs. C. H. Dowling, Mrs. G. L. Cook, Mrs. E. R. Ashbridge, Mrs. W. A. Ludlow and Mrs. W. M. Howes. Mrs. S. R. McCulloch was evaluator.

It was decided to charter a bus in early February and attend a council meeting of the International Toastmistress Club, to be held at Qualicum Beach.

Mrs. A. L. Blake introduced toastmistress Mrs. H. L. Clark.

Main speakers were Mrs. A. M. Reid, who read Helen Merrill's "Canadian Wind"; Mrs. J. L. Brens, "The Big Country"; and Mrs. Harry Winston, "Resources of Canada." Miss Juanita Davies was timer and evaluations were made by workshop members.

The Spur was awarded to Mrs. Brens as the most improved speaker and the Oscar went to Mrs. Love for her evaluation of Mrs. Brens' speech.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I married a man eight years my junior. After four years of trying desperately to make him happy, our marriage is on the rocks. Our daughter is two now and I'm hoping to save the situation for her sake.

We didn't have a fight. He simply told me he was taking his clothes to his mother's house and wasn't coming back. When I asked why, he replied, "I am too immature to face the responsibilities of marriage. I want to live with my mother."

That was three months ago. He telephones every few days and comes to dinner every Sunday. I have refused support money because I am financially independent. I love him and I need him. Please tell me how to make this marriage work. MRS. P.R.E.

Dear Mrs. P.R.E.: You can't force a man's love to be a husband. This juvenile has told you he wants no part of marriage and if you are smart you'll take his word for it.

Since you are financially independent, spend some of your money on a psychiatrist and find out why you love this loser. A normal attachment this isn't.

Dear Ann Landers: I just learned that the armed services will not take a man who has a prison record and I'm turned up. Why should the undesirable characters enjoy privileges of living in this great country and not have to sacrifice anything? My sons both served in the Second World War. The older boy was wounded at Normandy. The younger boy picked up jungle rot in the south Pacific. When I think of the sacrifices made by millions of fine young men while the ex-cons sat out the war at home and made big money, it makes me furious. And now, it's happening again.

What do you have to say about this?—M.M.M.

Dear M.M.M.: Serving one's country is a privilege, not a punishment. When a man is convicted of a felony he loses many of his rights as a citizen and the privilege of wearing the uniform is one of those rights.

Dear Ann Landers: In the past two years I have sent you four well-written letters. Not one of them was published in your column.

I am sick of writing letters to you and not seeing my letters in the paper. This letter will be my last. — A DISGUSTED READER FROM MULBERRY POINT.

Dear Disgusted: I am glad

PERSONAL MENTION

By Dorothy Wrotnowski

The pace is quickening these last few days before Christmas and hours seem to be fast turning into minutes.

Dr. Douglas Leechman appeared to enjoy every minute of his 75th birthday party on Monday evening. So did his wife Ruth, and so did everyone else. It was one of those good parties.

King Arthur's Round Table was the setting and with the dark paneled walls and bright red curtains it was a wise choice. Not to mention all the delicious food that Doris Loughheed is famed for serving.

Dr. H. S. Scargill proposed the toast to his friend and there was a brief answer by Douglas Leechman. Then there was the He's a Jolly Good Fellow bit.

Gervaise and Lillian Chambers were at the party and were quite thrilled to have Gervaise's only niece, Miss Anne Chambers with them.

Anne, whose home is in London, arrived last Sunday and will go to the physiotherapy department of the Gorge Road Hospital after the holidays.

At the moment she plans to stay here a year. Next summer, her brother Quintin, a professor of English at a Tokyo university and with whom the Chambers spent last Christmas in Japan, will come to Victoria to see his uncle, aunt and sister.

The W. H. Hickmans, also at the party, were quite excited about having daughter Janice home for the holiday. She will be here about two weeks.

Janice, who has her M.A. is a Teaching Fellow at Harvard and is working for her PhD in French.

Tour Lighted Houses

After the Leechman party went on to the Chamber of Commerce rooms to pick up papers, etc., and with George Maycock, Alan Macfarlane and Earl Dinnether started off on a judging tour of Victoria's lighted homes.

Driver of the car, Jaycee Jim Leamy, was most helpful on our first night out.

Entrants in the contest this year seem to have gone to a great deal of effort to make the city beautiful this holiday season. And of course there are hundreds more who have decorated their homes and not entered the contest.

After the tour of some of the houses it was down to Dockyard for a view of the lighted navy ships. You'll have to see the ships yourself. I can't describe how beautiful they looked. It really is worth a special effort to see these ships, colorfully lighted from mast to fore and after decks and rigging outlined. I'm running out of navy language, but I do wish you to go and see.

At the invitation of Capt. W. F. Hayes we went aboard HMCS Sussexvale for a little light refreshment and some stimulating, amusing conversation.

Home for Christmas

One of the nicest things I've heard this season happened at St. Joseph's student nurses Christmas party the other night.

Santa Claus had a special gift for Diane Levesque and it came from her fellow students, the entire Probie Class. It was a return ticket by jet to Montreal so that Diane can spend Christmas with her family. A wonderful surprise and given in the true Christmas spirit.

Diane came to Victoria from New Richmond, Que., last September to start her training as a nurse and was not planning to be home for this Yuletide.

Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Leechman photographed at the party they gave on Monday evening on the occasion of Dr. Leechman's 75th birthday.

The ceremony took place in London on December 3. After a honeymoon in Paris and Scotland, the newlyweds will make their home in Vancouver, arriving in Canada in early January.

International Intrigue Involved in Heroin Haul

COLUMBUS, GA. (UPI)—An incredible story of international intrigue involving $100,000,000 worth of heroin found in a trailer park here widened to Orleans, France Tuesday with the arrest of a retired American army officer.

Samuel Desist, 42, awarded the French Medal of Civil Merit for promoting Franco-American friendship when he retired from the army in 1964, was the eighth person taken into custody. He was picked up at the request of U.S. narcotics agents in Rome, Italy.

The drug cache—found in the deep freeze of a "Mr. Average" soldier—was the largest single seizure of narcotics ever made in the U.S.

Police in New York, the nation's "narcotics capital," predicted a "heroin panic" as a result of the huge seizure. Similar "panics" occurred in 1961 and again earlier this year when large seizures drove up the price of drugs. This resulted in a crime increase as criminal elements with the habit stepped up their activities to get the added cash needed for purchases.

SPRING TRAP

Agents sprang the trap on the record haul Monday when they arrested Chief Warrant Officer Herman Conder, an 18-year career army man, and seized 209 pounds of the white powdered drug.

Five foreigners were arrested in New York in connection with the case and Frankie Dio, brother of racketeer Johnny Dio, was arrested at Miami Beach. Johnnie was sent to prison for throwing acid in the face of labor columnist Victor Riesel.

Conder was held under $100,000 bond with a hearing postponed at request of his appointed attorney until Dec. 28.

The 35-year-old Conder had been stationed at Orleans, France. He allegedly was promised $10,000 if he would permit the drug shipment to be hidden in a freezer he was bringing back to the States with him.

Through cloak-and-dagger work on both sides of the Atlantic, authorities got word of the plan and Conder became the central figure in the sensational case.

JUST AVERAGE GUY

Conder was described by one source as "Mr. Average Citizen." This source said Conder apparently was a "victim" of had companions and poor judgment.

Conder's arrest came as a complete surprise to his wife. "I can't understand it," she said. "We never wanted for anything. We've been late but we have never missed payment on our trailer or automobile."

She said the first she knew about the trouble was Monday afternoon when agents came to the trailer and summoned Conder outside.

"After a few minutes he came back and said: 'I'm in trouble. I'll have to go,' and that was it," the young mother of three boys recalled.

THEN HE KNEW

She said the eight-year-old kept asking her Monday where his father had gone, and added: "When he saw the news last night (on television), he knew."

As a first offender, Conder could get a five to 20-year prison sentence and a fine of not more than $20,000.

George Gaffney, a spokesman at the narcotics bureau in Washington, said the government did not want to disclose inside details of the case because it does not want "to get anyone killed."

U.S. Calls Bids For Big Oil Lift

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States sought bids Tuesday from air charter companies for an emergency airlift of oil to Zambia in further support of Britain's sanctions against Rhodesia.

Washington also is holding up all export license applications for shipments to Rhodesia "pending clarification of policy."

U.S. officials said the airlift likely would start in the Congolese capital of Leopoldville with three or four C-130s or other propeller craft, and that Boeing 707 or other jets might be used later.

RCAF Ready To Go

OTTAWA (UPI)—An advance party of Canadian airmen will leave Thursday for Zambia to set up Canada's participation in the airlift of supplies to the African country blockaded by the economic sanctions against Rhodesia.

A defence department spokesman said an RCAF Yukon will fly the advance crew from Trenton, Ont., to Lusaka, Zambia, via Dakar, Senegal and Leopoldville and Elisabethville in the Congo.

The advance party, headed by Wing Cmdr. G. W. Webb, 42, of Hamilton, Ont., probably will arrive Friday.

It will then set up camp for the Canadians to follow—four Hercules transports and 150 air and ground crew.

Garden Notes

Plant Ideal Gift

By M. V. CHESNUT

The practice of giving flowering potted plants as Christmas presents is a delightful one, and one which is happily on the increase these past few years. As I have mentioned before, such a gift is a particularly happy choice when the recipient is a shut-in, an invalid, or an elderly person who can't get around much any more.

Sheer boredom, together with a feeling of uselessness, makes their lives a misery, but I have known the gift of a well-chosen plant to have an almost magical effect upon their mental outlook, providing something to care for, something to love, and a new interest in life.

Quite a few of the potted plants available at this time of the year are capable of living and blooming for many years, given the proper care, but it sometimes happens that a plant which was a picture of beauty and glowing health at Christmas becomes a sorry leafless spectacle by the end of January. When a plant goes downhill this rapidly, the causes are usually too much warmth, too much mist, too much kindness, stuffy atmosphere and low air humidity.

These plants were raised in a cool greenhouse where they enjoyed a humid atmosphere and a very much lower temperature than you would suppose. When they find themselves in a stuffy, overheated room, perhaps close to a sizzling radiator and with air drier than the Sahara Desert, they simply "fold their tents like the Arabs and silently steal away."

The general requirements for Christmas potted plants are simple enough: A cool room, fresh air, lots of light, freedom from drafts and violent fluctuations in temperature, and fairly high humidity.

This last isn't easy to provide in a steam-heated apartment where there are no provisions for humidifying the air, but I know one lady in a downtown apartment who has a marvelously successful indoor garden under such conditions. Her secret lies simply in spraying the leaves and buds of her plants once and sometimes twice daily with a fine mist of plain water. Even her African violets luxuriate under this freshening spray, which refutes the old idea that their leaves should never be wetted.

While these general rules apply to nearly all houseplants, there are some kinds commonly sold in the Christmas season which require a little special treatment to give their best and most long-lasting display. Shortly after Christmas I will be giving detailed and specific instructions for the year-round care of these plants, but in the meantime, here are a few rough notes to go on with:

AZALEAS—These lovely plants are actually evergreen flowering shrubs which have been at least two years in the raising, and it is a pity to see one fade and lose its leaves for want of proper care. City water is usually too charged with chlorine and other minerals to suit this family. Use rain water or refrigerator de-frostings, and add a tiny pinch of ammonium sulphate to the water once a week. Azaleas need daily watering and should never be allowed to become bone dry.

CYCLAMEN—Keep in an east or north window, with plenty of light but not too much direct sunshine. Maintain the soil evenly but barely moist, especially avoiding soggy soil in the bottom of the pot as this tends to rot the bulb. This plant demands an uncomfortably cool room—it will remain in bloom at least three times as long at 55 degrees as it would at 70.

JERUSALEM CHERRY—This one likes a coolish room, too. Ideally around 60 degrees, but it will adjust to ordinary room temperatures if kept well away from radiators and other sources of fierce heat. Water as required, allowing the soil surface to become definitely dry to the touch between waterings. Give a small pinch of Epsom salts in its water every second week.

POINSETTIA—This glamorous Mexican will tolerate a bit more room warmth than most houseplants—around 60 to 70 degrees. It enjoys lots of sunshine but detests sudden chills and drafts, and shows its resentment by dropping its leaves. One of its peculiarities is its dislike of artificial light during the evening hours—a Poinsettia enjoys full sunshine all day but should go to bed with the chickens, with complete darkness from sunset until dawn. If kept in a room where the lights are turned on at night, no more flower buds will be produced. Water as for Jerusalem Cherry.

ARTHUR HOPPE Prepares Formula

Mr. Peiping Washes Brains

The ability of Orientals to brainwash prisoners of war had long been accepted by the American public. But the methods and machinery employed were unknown even to the CIA until the defection to the West via Hong Kong of Mr. Peiping Tom, former proprietor of the Peiping Chinese Brain Laundry.

His value was immediately recognized and he was flown post haste to Washington. There, after a brief study of American brains and American culture, he proudly announced the opening of the first All-American Chinese Brain Laundry.

His work was considered so important that the president, the secretary of state and the secretary of defense attended the opening ceremonies and personally inspected the vast machinery installed in the steamy back shop. Mr. Peiping explained his modern up-to-date methods through an interpreter.

"The laundry items," began Mr. Peiping, "are first immersed in this frothy vat where they are percolated for one hour, and 36 minutes. Then . . ."

"Just a minute," said the president suspiciously, "what's the formula for that soft soap you're using there?"

Mr. Peiping smiled. "Four parts presidential speeches, two parts Readers' Digest, and one part each of television newscasts, newspaper editorials, syndicated columnists, Life magazine and addresses given at political dinners."

The president nodded. "No doubt about it," he said, "a mind boiled in a solution like that would certainly come out clean."

"Then," continued Mr. Peiping, "each item is doubly rinsed in pure distillate of Time magazine and carefully ironed by hand to remove every last wrinkle."

"Marvelous!" cried the president. "Wonderful!" cried the secretary of defense. And the secretary of state hurried back to the state department to draw up a laundry list.

The popularity of Mr. Peiping's laundry spread. His laundry mark on a government worker's forehead was a prerequisite for promotion and within six months virtually everyone in Washington thought only clean, hygienic, neatly-pressed thoughts.

Branches were opened throughout the country. Patriotic Americans everywhere availed themselves of the one-day service. Occasionally, someone would lose his mind, but as most people said, "You know how it is with these Chinese laundries."

Eventually, the vast majority of American brains had been totally immersed, boiled, rinsed and ironed, each guaranteed spotless and wrinkle-free. But actually, no change in public opinion or policy resulted.

For oddly enough, in 99 and 44/100th per cent of the cases, no one could tell the difference.

Vive la...Oops!

SIDNEY HARRIS

An editorial I read the other day used the tag-line from that old joke about the Frenchman in the House of Deputies remarking that there is only a small difference between men and women—whereupon another deputy stands up and shouts, "Vive la difference!"

The only thing wrong with this story is no Frenchman would ever say it that way. "Vive la difference" is a wholly English expression. "Vive" in French means only a "sting-fish." The Frenchman would say "Hourras!" or "Bravo!" or just possibly "Vivat!"

One of the most curious aspects of language is the fact that so many so-called "foreign phrases" are not used in the land of their presumed origin, or are used in a totally different way. Dozens of words we think of as "French" would puzzle a Frenchman if he heard them here.

We use the French word "encore" to call back a performer; the French cry out "Bis!" We use the French phrase "Nom de plume" for someone writing under an assumed name; the French say "Nom de guerre." "Brassiere" is a French word, but it means a child's bodice or vest in French; what we call a "brassiere" is called a "soutien-gorge" in France.

Although "menu" is a reputable French word, the Frenchman in a restaurant does not ask the waiter for one; he asks for "la carte." The only time, indeed, he calls for the "menu" is when he wants to know the "menu a prix fixe"—which, inexplicably enough, we call "table d'hôte."

"Pie a la mode" is, of course, a totally unknown in France, except through North American tourists who seem to believe that "a la mode" is French for "topped with ice cream."

(And perhaps the most horrible Gallic perversion now appearing on North American menus is the phrase: "Roast beef with au jus," as though "au jus" were some special kind of juice, instead of simply "with juice.")

"Lingerie" in French refers more to linens than to underwear; the latter is generally called "sous-vêtements" or "dessous." We say a "double entendre" for a phrase with a dirty hidden meaning; but the French call this a "double entente."

One of the most fascinating examples of change from one language to another is our use of the French word "morale" as in the "morale" of the troops. This is utterly unknown in France, where "morale" means "ethics" or "moral faculties." What we call "morale" the French, oddly enough, call "moral" or "état d'esprit" or "force d'ame."

There's a moral to all this, somewhere, if you're willing to look for it.

Demerit For Sickness

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Although about 85 per cent of Pacific Great Eastern Railway's Prince George employees have been allowed to return to their jobs, a two-week-old battle between the trainmen and the PGE is not yet over.

The men, members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, say the price of regaining their jobs has been unduly high and appeals can be expected.

A spokesman for the CBRT said Tuesday about 38 of the 45 Prince George employees have been given their jobs back, most of them having been assessed 50 demerits after investigations into their mass "sickness".

Men are allowed 60 demerits—called "brownies"—before automatic dismissal.

Hugh Armstrong, PGE public relations officer, in an interview from Vancouver would neither confirm nor deny the reports of demerits. He said he had heard "different figures" in many cases.

I. H. Hoppe, chairman of CBRT Lodge 845, said the brotherhood never authorized the walkout.

Mr. Hoppe said at least two trainmen have been dismissed following the PGE investigations which now have been completed.

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Josef Stalin was ignored by the Soviet state Tuesday on the 86th anniversary of his birth. Until Stalin died in 1953, Russian newspapers cleared their columns Dec. 21 to publish special articles, poems and other eulogies.

De Gaulle

Victory Direct Mandate

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle said Tuesday night his election victory Sunday represents a direct mandate from the whole of the French people and he intends to work with renewed ardor for progress, independence and peace.

After de Gaulle got his new seven-year term with 55.18 per cent of the votes in a run-off race with the candidate of the left, Francois Mitterrand, many opposition groups were quick to say de Gaulle could no longer use a strong hand to force through his policies.

DESPITE SPLIT

The Elysee Palace released a statement in which de Gaulle said:

"Since Dec. 19 the chief of state indeed holds a direct mandate from the whole of the French people. Moreover, the campaign showed that the entire country understood it to be this way, whatever the electoral division of its citizens.

"Thus the new republic finds itself, decidedly confirmed, before the nation and the world. Starting from here it is going to develop with a renewed ardor its work of progress, independence and peace for the service of France and for the profit of the French people."

ONLY MINORITY

Socialist deputies issued a statement saying: "Forcing the chief of state into a run-off election has considerable political repercussions — he represents now only a minority of the registered voters and can no longer pretend to identify himself with France. . . . Gaullism has received a blow that marks the beginning of its decline."

Cuban Captain Jumps Ship

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP)—The captain and chief engineer of the Cuban government ship Uvero have been given political asylum by the U.S. Embassy, a reliable foreign ministry source said Tuesday. The Uvero was unloading a cargo of sugar.

EQUITY

CAN MEAN

CASH IN YOUR HAND

That investment you have in your home is the most valuable asset you own. You qualify for the Associates Home Owners Loan Plan. Under this plan, you may borrow from $5,000 to $20,000 on the equity in your home. The interest rate is reasonable. There are no hidden charges or obscure clauses. You completely repay the loan in equal monthly installments over a period of up to ten years. There are no "balloon" or "bullet" payments. Interest is computed monthly on the unpaid balance. This means that each payment you make reduces the amount of interest you pay. There are 361 reasons why you might need cash—financing a second university education, buying a second car, remodeling your home. Keep the Associates Home Owners Plan in mind. The Associates is one of Canada's largest financing firms with over 100 offices in principal cities across the country.

Carrier Jets Blast Red Bridge

From AP-Reuters
SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. jet planes from the carrier Kitty Hawk bombed a highway bridge 12 miles north of Haiphong Tuesday in the closest American approach of the war to that major port of North Viet Nam. They claimed five direct hits.

American authorities also disclosed the rescue of a pilot of one of three U.S. Air Force fighter-bombers shot down during extensive raids Monday. He was plucked from the Gulf of Tonkin by an amphibious plane after it had destroyed his F105 Thunderchief.

A summary made public by American authorities said the Viet Cong killed 66 civilians, some of them village chiefs, and kidnapped 90 for military duty or work as porters the week of Dec. 12-18.

In South Viet Nam, ground operations, Viet Cong bands abandoned 84 dead and dispersed in the face of a drive into coastal Binh Dinh province by elements of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division. The troops captured 19 guerrillas and destroyed 176 other Vietnamese as suspects.

A U.S. military spokesman said "South Vietnamese troops killed 27 enemy on a search-and-destroy mission in Quang Tri province, which adjoins the North Vietnamese frontier. Soldiers searching a coastal area of that province were reported to have found a mass grave containing the bodies of 24 guerrillas."

The guerrillas later were ambushed by U.S. infantrymen and fled, but only after one of the Viet Cong had turned a machine-gun on Scholten and shot him in the back.

Meanwhile, an American patrol rescued two U.S. civilians and their South Vietnamese driver from Viet Cong kidnappers in a gunfight in which a Dutch-born Canadian citizen was killed.

BURNABY MAN

Killed was Otto Scholten, 58, of Burnaby, B.C., a member of a four-man survey party captured by the guerrillas Monday 10 miles northeast of Saigon.

The men, employed by the RMK Corporation, a U.S. construction company, had been marched off into the jungle after being captured.

Bombing Chinese 'Suicide' for U.S.

LONDON (Reuters)—If the United States bombs China it "will be digging its own grave," Felix Greene, a British journalist specializing in Asian affairs who has recently returned from a tour of North Viet Nam, said Tuesday night.

"Having been to China for five weeks recently," he said, "I can say China is prepared for anything."

Of the possibility of a peace settlement in Viet Nam, Greene said: "This idea of the North Vietnamese sitting down with people who are bombing their cities and their people seems to me totally unreasonable—and I share their view."

Greene spoke to 400 disarmament advocates linked with Viet Nam Workshop, a study group working on problems of achieving peace.

U.S. Still Weighing Christmas Truce Bid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States is still considering a Viet Cong offer for a 12-hour Christmas Eve truce in Viet Nam war, officials said Tuesday night.

They emphasized that no decision had been made on the offer, but the fact the U.S. government was still considering it seemed to signal a change in the attitude of American officials toward it.

But the admission that the United States was still considering the offer seemed to imply that perhaps American officials were taking a second and longer look at it.

Only last weekend Pope Paul expressed the hope the United States would accept the Viet Cong offer. He said this could be the prelude to negotiations from which "equilibrium and peace may follow."

The White House said Monday President Johnson welcomed the Pope's expression of the need for peace in southeast Asia, but sidestepped the whole Christmas truce question.

White House press secretary Bill Moyers would say only that the U.S. posture "is the same as the president said it would remain—we will talk unconditionally anytime the other side is ready."

Shortly after the offer was made by the Viet Cong radio earlier this month, Secretary of State Dean Rusk told a news conference the matter was for "local" South Vietnamese and U.S. military commanders to decide.

The implication of Rusk's remark was that no top-level political considerations were involved and that U.S. officials generally were skeptical of the offer.

Fred Diana advises Ralph Oostland on Dave Earthy's hair style

Hair Styles In Style for Men

Maestro of Mane Line

By BILL STAYDAL
Frederick Diana is a barber who doesn't give haircuts. Hair styles, yes.

He's one of the new generation of barbers who believe that male hair is an adornment, not something put up there to be cut off. It's a trend already well-established in eastern Canada and the U.S., and only now reaching the Island.

INDIVIDUAL STYLING
Through the standard "a-little-off-the-top, dark-on-the-sides" haircut will be around for years to come, better barbers are already thinking in terms of hair styled to the individual.

Carried to the ultimate, this can mean shampooing, waving and tinting in the manner of the ladies' beauty salons.

But in common sense terms, all that "styling" means is tailoring hair to the head.

ALL DON'T NEED IT
"Seventy-five per cent of men don't really need styling," says 32-year-old Fred Diana in his new shop on University of Victoria's Gordon Head campus. "Their hair is correct now."

"But some men need help. You've seen them—everything right except their hair."

A graduate of several courses in hair styling in the eastern U.S. and Vancouver, Fred is currently giving his own styling lessons for experienced Victoria barbers.

Fred gave me his full $5.25 treatment this week. I had my hair shampooed (two latherings), razor-cut while wet, set with combing and warm air, then further trimmed and combed and patted into place. The finished product wasn't much different from the raw material, I had been wearing, my hair correctly, Fred said.

TELLS BACKGROUND
While working on my head Fred gave me a little of the background to the current upsurge in men's hair styling.

"In the 20s, this service was given in practically all of the better shops," he said.

"Then came the depression, and extra service went out when cheap haircuts came in."

"The war brought short haircuts, and the military influence—crew cut and brush cut—kept hair short for 10 years."

SHORT BARBERS
"After the war, when we were short of barbers, schools turned them out with instruction in only the bare essentials."

Today, spurred by the advertising of the cosmetics industry, men are paying more attention to their looks. Fred has found the ideal market for his talent on the university campus, he reports.

"This is the age group that is putting it over. You can't sell a new hair style to a man in his fifties."

Hair styling, says Fred, begins with "a few basic steps."

Then it's up to the stylist's sense of balance.

That amounts to leaving more on the sides of a long face, and cutting it close along the round face and piling it a bit higher on top.

The object is to create a smooth oval.

Between snidings and snips, Fred passed on these tips for men:

- "Hair is either acid, alkaline or neutral. Most is alkaline, so if you wash your hair with soap you're only adding more alkali. It dries out and blows around."
- "Add a teaspoon of vinegar or lemon juice to 10 ounces of water for a good rinse. It neutralizes alkali."
- OIL DRIPS UP
"When you put oil on your hair your scalp gets out of the habit of making its own. In effect, you're drying your hair with oil."
- "With proper styling and cutting, you don't need any dressing on your hair."
- Married, father of three and an ardent hunter ("with a name like Diana you've got to hunt"), Fred dismisses the suggestion that it's effeminate to have the hair styled.
- "All it is making the most of what you've got," he says. "If you drive around in an expensive car and wear a good suit, why have a two-bit haircut?"

Tragic Bridge Spans Four Generations

EUREKA, Calif. (UPI)—Big Lagoon Bridge is one of many that span the streams and rivers of California's Redwood region, hardly noticed by drivers who pass over it.

But to one family, the bridge means tragedy beyond the worst nightmares.

On Feb. 28, 1957 Richard Bessinger, 30, Trinidad, Calif., was killed by a truck as he walked across the bridge on his way home from work.

Monday a third member of the family was killed there. He was Dennis Whisler, 14, also of Trinidad, grandson of Richard. He was also a pedestrian, standing beside his bicycle as a car driven by Theresa Dennis, 33, strided on the key roadway and struck him.

Nanaimo Woman Dies

Inquest Clears Victoria Driver

NANAIMO—Coroner Russ Inkster blasted Nanaimo city council Tuesday night, for failing to carry out safety recommendations made by an inquest jury in February.

"In Nanaimo we're in the horse and buggy days as far as marking streets to aid motorists," charged the Coroner. His comments came during an inquest into the death of a 73-year-old woman, hit by a car while crossing the street at Grace and Nicol.

In February, a jury investigating the death of an elderly woman recommended the city make improvements to this section of Nanaimo.

NOTHING DONE

Said Mr. Inkster Tuesday "I am surprised to find city council has done nothing regarding those recommendations from last February."

Mrs. Florence Rose Davies, 120 Victoria Road, Nanaimo, was struck by a car Nov. 26 and died Dec. 12. The car was driven by Hugh Lindsay.

Hamersley, 754 Mount Joy Avenue, Victoria.

The jury said the accident was caused by a combination of poor lighting conditions and very inadequate lighting. There was no negligence on the part of the driver.

The jury recommended "most strongly":

- The city install adequate lighting on the west side of Nicol from Terminal to Finlayson;
- Survey lighting on the east side of Nicol;
- Install a flashing warning light at the Grace and Nicol intersection.
- The jury "deplored" lack of pedestrian crossing signs at this and other locations;
- Asked that all pedestrian crossings be clearly marked, painted and signed.

Fair's in Hole, Officials Hit

NEW YORK (UPI)—Why did the New York World's Fair lose $30,000,000?

According to an audit, the reasons include:

Police Seek Man's Killer

WINNIPEG (CP)—A 44-year-old man was found mortally wounded on a West Winnipeg Street Tuesday. Police, with no other clues to go on, were looking for the weapon that killed him.

The man was found lying on the street with a gunshot wound in the right side of his back. "I saw his feet moving but I figured he was drunk so I passed him," said taxi driver Ralph Cook, who found the man lying on the street about 5 a.m.

Cook, however, turned his car around when he heard the man cry out: "Help me get to a hospital, I'm hurt. Help me . . . I am shot . . ."

Cook then picked the man up and drove him to the hospital. He died two hours later.

LONDON (AP)—Take a recording of Good King Wenceslas made at 33 1/3 revolutions per minute, play it at 78 r.p.m. and enjoy a good twist. That's just about the way it should sound, says Elizabeth Poston, a British composer and expert on medieval music.

Miss Poston has strong views on the things that have happened to carols through the centuries, especially Wenceslas.

Lotsa Calls

We're Big Talkers

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C. Telephone Company expects British Columbians will place more than 280,000 long-distance calls during Christmas Day—an average of nearly 10,000 an hour and about twice the number of a normal business day.

Fifty to 60 per cent of these will be completed—as people across the country compete for available circuits.

The company expects about half the calls placed to go through direct distance dialing (DDD) facilities. The other half will be handled by the largest operator staff employed by the company on any Christmas day in several years—a total of 1,535 in offices throughout the province.

Last Christmas Day, B.C. Telephone operators handled 96,450 long-distance calls and 101,850 were placed through DDD facilities.

In Victoria, 127 operators—seven more than last Christmas Day—will be required to man the boards through the day. In Kamloops, 57 will work, compared with 46; in Trail 39 compared to 25; in Nelson 37 compared to 31 and in Cranbrook 35 compared to 29.

The rapid growth of northern B.C. is reflected in the growth in number of telephone operators on duty in Prince George—98 this Christmas Day against 55 a year ago.

Good King Wenceslas a Swinger?

Should Be, Says Briton

She says carols were originally intended for dancing. They were folk songs and not necessarily religious.

The medieval clergy decided that dancing in church would not do, so carols went underground. They survived precisely for hundreds of years in remote villages.

Then carols came back—with a whimper—under Victorian revivalists who took the tunes, wrote their own words and loaded down the result with church harmonies.

This is what happened to Wenceslas. The tune, once a splendidly gay and virile dance measure, dates from the 13th century, says Miss Poston.

The words were written in 1853 by Dr. John Mason Neale, Miss Poston, in a foreword to the Penguin Book of Christmas Carols, describes his grafting operation as "the dreariest of travesties."

Brink's Files Suit

CHICAGO (AP)—Brink's Inc. here was brought against the American District Telegraph Corp., a burglar alarm equipment company which Brink's said made false statements in entering a contract Aug. 6, 1962, to provide burglar alarm protection for Brink's vaults in 22 states.

Brink's asked for $3,060,000 in compensatory damages and $3,000,000 in punitive damages, and for a jury trial.

The suit said that to obtain the contract American District Telegraph said its burglar alarm services "use sensitive microphones to detect the sound of attempts to force entry through walls, ceilings or any other part of a vault."

The system failed, Brink's alleged, in Syracuse Oct. 25 when thieves used armor-piercing shells to blast a way into a foot-thick vault.

Brink's provides money and valuables protection service in 3,500 U.S. cities.

In Alexandria, Va., Brink's used a gun dealer for more than $1,000,000 Tuesday for having sold the anti-tank cannon allegedly used in the Syracuse robbery.

It is Keith Neville-Smith, a 19-year-old from bohemian Yorkville, a section of Toronto where pseudo-bests abound.

He reads poetry, and a jazzy group swings in to give him musical backing.

His dulcet tones proclaim the no-hope-for-man philosophy of best poet Allen Ginsberg to the crowd at the A-Go-Go.

He was there Sunday, and he'll be there again Wednesday, at the A-Go-Go's folk night.

Other performers Wednesday include guitarist-songstress Jane Lowman, and Blues X Five.

Final Day to Help Fill 500 Stockings

Some of the biggest friends of the Colonist 500 Fund are also some of the littlest, and Tuesday they helped drive the total to $13,143.80 — with just one day left to go.

Today, the fund is expected to surpass all previous years. It has never been as high on the second-last day as Tuesday's total of $13,143.

In 1961, best year until this, the final figure was $13,529 — thanks to donations of $3,464 on the last day.

But back to the little friends who help so much.

Since the 1965 fund began a few weeks ago, several groups of school children have exer-

The 500 Fund each year sends a gift of money to 500 of the area's most destitute families just in time to bring some light into their Christmas time.

Last week three more schools, in individual efforts, raised a total of almost $280 for the fund.

Young students of Gordon

Head Junior Secondary School contributed an impressive $165.

It was raised by holding a sock hop dance and a volleyball game and through collections of money from classes.

'Irish' Ring Broken Up

MONTREAL (CP) — Police who seized 5,000,000 Irish sweepstakes tickets valued at $17,000,000 Monday night, said Tuesday they have probably destroyed a lottery operation that extended throughout Canada and included parts of the United States.

Satellites Sprayed Askew

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)

— The upper stage of a Titan III rocket hurtled into orbit as a launching platform Tuesday, but misfired after six hours and sprayed a number of satellites into wrong orbits.

The air force reported the upper stage—called a transstage—failed to start its engines a third time.

The firing would have given a circular orbit at that altitude and the transstage then was to have ejected four satellites at about 30-second intervals.

Instead, the 35-foot transstage continued in a great looping orbital path ranging from 120 to 20,900 miles.

A combined force of Montreal and provincial police raided two suburban Montreal homes and seized the tickets and $100,000 in cash and cheques.

Provincial police officials described the operation as "definitely the largest lottery raid in... Quebec, at least—and perhaps in all of Canada."

MANY ARRESTS?

They said further investigations may lead to the arrest of "many people who were actually selling the tickets." Lists of the sellers also were seized in the raids, police said.

Officials said the two homes were the key distribution centres for Irish sweepstakes tickets. The distribution network, they continued, extended into all provinces and into the north-eastern United States.

Bennett Makes News Doesn't Read Papers

VANCOUVER (CP)—An eight-man jury was excused Tuesday until Jan. 10 in a slander case against Premier Bennett.

Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes adjourned the Supreme Court to hear arguments on a motion by Mr. Bennett's lawyer that is in effect a bid for dismissal of the suit and because of personal commitments.

The suit was launched by George E. P. Jones, former chairman of the B.C. purchasing commission.

FORCED TO RETIRE

Mr. Jones was forced in March by government legislation to retire. He says he was slandered by the premier March 5, 1965, and has since been unable to get another job.

Tom Berger, Jones' lawyer, has said the premier said in the speech: "I'm not going to say anything about the Jones boy, I won't talk about it but I could say a lot. I just want to assure you the position taken by the government was the right one."

Mr. Berger alleged innuendo in the premier's remarks left

Glass Kiss Better Than None

Construction worker Ralph Modore makes most of chance of lifetime to kiss Sophia Loren when she arrived in New York for movie premiere.

Intrusion of plate glass window between them mattered little. Tuesday a Paris court granted divorce to Giuliana Fiorini, first wife of Carlo Ponti, clearing some of legal complications barring recognition of the film director's marriage to Miss Loren. (AP).

Earlier, the government won a 27-vote majority endorsement of its handling of the Rhodesia crisis.

This vote, 239 to 272, was forced by the Conservatives on a technical point to underline their mounting criticism of Prime Minister Wilson's Rhodesia policies.

SETS DOWN TERMS

Wilson told Parliament steps are being taken to give the British governor in Rhodesia, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, detailed terms on which he could start discussions with Prime Minister Ian Smith or any other Rhodesian leader.

"The governor is willing to discuss, even with the illegal regime, the mechanism by which Rhodesia can be returned to legal rule," Wilson said.

MAJOR POINTS

The prime minister also made these major points in a 30-minute speech:

● Britain will not by itself call for a naval blockade of the port of Beira in Portuguese Mozambique, even if the oil embargo against Rhodesia is broken through that territory.

● Britain would be willing to take part in an international plan to protect the Kariba Dam

Australia Angered

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — The Australian Government today lodged a strong protest with Indonesia following anti-aircraft fire from the Rho Islands near a Qantas airliner last Friday.

'Ready to Talk with Salisbury'

Solid Victory For Wilson

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's oil embargo on Rhodesia was approved by a 228-vote majority in the Commons early today in a vote forced by a small group of Conservative opposition members.

Regulations enforcing the ban were passed by 276 votes to 48 — figures reflecting the extent of the so-called "Rhodesian lobby" among Conservatives who oppose strong measures against Rhodesia.

FORCED VOTE

The right wing Conservative group forced the vote against their party leaders' wishes, and most of the 363 Conservative members abstained from voting.

Government supporters cheered when Cledwyn Hughes, minister of state for Commonwealth relations, disclosed that the United States has instructed an American oil company to divert a tanker due in Beira, Mozambique, today with a cargo of crude oil for Rhodesia.

GOOD RESPONSE

Hughes said the response of other governments has also been encouraging.

Earlier, the government won a 27-vote majority endorsement of its handling of the Rhodesia crisis.

This vote, 239 to 272, was forced by the Conservatives on a technical point to underline their mounting criticism of Prime Minister Wilson's Rhodesia policies.

Kosygin

Wilson to Pay Visit To Kremlin Feb. 21

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Wilson announced in the Commons Tuesday he will visit Moscow Feb. 21 to 24 at the Soviet Union's invitation in a new effort to settle the Viet Nam war.

But a British official conceded there are no new developments to give any increased hope the latest British peace mission might succeed where its predecessors failed.

The Associated Press reported that Soviet Premier Kosygin, without committing himself to a precise date, was said by qualified diplomats to have undertaken in principle to come to Britain some time next fall.

Wilson said he has had a continuing exchange of messages with Kosygin.

He also told Parliament he now has U.S. President Johnson's solid support in any peace initiative Britain could take.

"He (Johnson) has his duty to do, but at the same time it is quite wrong to suggest he is not keen to get a peaceful and honorable settlement in Viet Nam."

GIs May Cross Cambodia Border

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state department indicated Tuesday that U.S. military commanders in South Viet Nam have authority to fight across the Cambodia border if it is "essential" for the protection of their forces.

U.S. troop commanders in South Viet Nam have been reported to have authority to pursue enemy forces across the border into Cambodia, or, alternatively, only to fire at such forces if they fled across the border and if they fired on U.S. troops from across the border.

Baby Boy Bore Triplets

LONDON — The bearer of triplets was their brother, a Chinese baby boy, says a report by Dr. Edmund Y. C. Lee, a surgeon at Queen Mary Hospital, Hong Kong, in the "Archives of Diseases in Childhood."

At two months of age he was feeding lustily, putting on weight, and showing all the signs of good health except for one interesting condition.

His abdomen had been gradually distending for 10 days—as though he were pregnant.

An abdominal X-ray disclosed the truth and Dr. Lee decided to "open up" and see for himself.

He found, bathing in clear fluid, three living fetuses at different stages of development, attached to umbilical cords to a thin-walled sac arising out of the pelvis.

Though they were later found to have well-formed skeletal, intestinal and nervous parts, they were imperfect, and the surgeon was able to remove them with ease.

The parent-baby's recovery was uneventful, and he was discharged from the hospital eight days later. He has since been in excellent condition.

His experience is an example of a rare slip of nature, known as foetus in foetus.

The most plausible explanation of such cases is that both the bearer and the included foetus arise from subdivision of a single fertilized ovum—as happens in the case of so-called identical twins.

Diefenbaker

Tory Chief Scoffs At Retiring

MONTREAL (CP)—A chipper John Diefenbaker brushed off any thoughts of retirement when reporters raised the subject Tuesday.

The Conservative chief, now 70, told questioners on his return from a Caribbean vacation:

"This retirement business is something that comes up repeatedly whenever there is a lack of matters to be discussed."

Mr. Diefenbaker reflected a moment and, with a twinkle in his eye, added: "In 1966, Mr. Pearson, the prime minister, also will qualify for the old age pension."

Quebec Tory Hits Chief:

Listen to the MPs

MONTREAL (CP)—Georges Valade, the only Progressive Conservative candidate to win a Montreal seat at the last general election, Tuesday night criticized John Diefenbaker after the Conservative leader's stopover here.

"Mr. Diefenbaker should listen a little less to some of his Quebec friends who have never been elected and never will be elected," said Mr. Valade.

ade, who was not among a group at the airport to meet Mr. Diefenbaker on his return from a Caribbean vacation.

Mr. Valade said Mr. Diefenbaker should listen more to the eight Conservatives actually elected from Quebec.

Re-elected member for Montreal Ste. Marie Nov. 8, Mr. Valade said there are "serious flaws" in the party structure in Quebec.

He and the other Conservative MPs from Quebec want a structure "more democratically and systematically organized."

He said he was not invited to meet Mr. Diefenbaker, when he passed through here.

More Russian Help For North Viet Nam

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union agreed Tuesday to give North Viet Nam more technical and economic aid. The agreement also could involve stepped up Soviet military aid.

A brief official announcement made no mention of military aid. But the deputy premier of the two countries who signed the aid pact spoke of military assistance during an exchange of speeches.

The announcement spoke separately of "supplementary technical assistance" and "additional free economic assistance."

The technical aid was not defined.

The economic aid involved a loan, postponed repayments on earlier loans, and a trade agreement that guarantees no Soviet price increases next year.

No figures were announced but the aid was believed to be sizeable. North Viet Nam has been hard pressed financially because of the Vietnamese war.

Korea Debate Highlights UN Closing

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A heated debate on the Korean question Tuesday night highlighted the closing of the 20th session of the United Nations General Assembly.

The 117-nation assembly worked overtime in an effort to end its session by late Tuesday night or early today after a three-month session.

The assembly was forced into night sittings for the last several days so a final vote could be taken on various resolutions approved in assembly committees.

Tuesday saw approval by the budgetary committee of a record 1966 budget of $12,567,420—$13,084,620 higher than had been recommended for 1965.

SCALE UNCHANGED

The scale of assessments remained unchanged for major contributors. The United States pays 31.91 per cent, the Soviet Union 14.82, Britain 7.21 and Canada 3.17. The scale also will apply in 1967.

The Vietnamese war, though not on the agenda, touched off a series of bitter clashes between the U.S. and the Soviet bloc countries in a number of debates.

During debate Tuesday on the Korean issue, Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko demanded in the main political committee that the U.S. withdraw its military forces from South Korea.

Last Circus

Queen Shares Nostalgia

LONDON (Reuters) — The Royal Family shared the thrills and nostalgia of London's last circus Tuesday night with a giant crowd—despite a protest against the Queen watching a "cruel" show.

With the Queen was Prince Philip and two of their three children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne; her sister Princess Margaret and Margaret's husband Lord Snowdon; the Queen's cousin Princess Alexandra and Alexandra's husband Angus Ogilvy.

LONE SURVIVOR

The night in the big top was a charity show taking place in the last Christmas season run of London's only surviving circus, run by Bertram Mills.

Television and rising costs have finally driven the show from the city. Mills' big rivals, Chipperfield's, left Britain last year for South Africa.

The Protective Society for Captive Animals protested against the Queen's attendance at the circus.

Straight Reporting Pearson's Desire

(Colonist Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson called Tuesday for newsmen and politicians to work together to dispel cynicism and disillusionment that is threatening democracy.

These feelings, particularly among young people, are "perhaps the most serious threat to democracy and the political process," he said.

He spoke to about 75 newsmen at a luncheon at the National Press Club of Canada. He urged them to return to "good old-fashioned straight reporting of the facts."

BECOMING REVIEWERS

"Too many reporters are becoming reviewers, the story becomes an analysis rather than an account," he said.

"There is no more important problem facing us today than to remove if we can... that feeling of disillusionment and cynicism about politics."

BACKED BY CANADA

The resolution, co-sponsored by 11 other nations, including Canada, urged the UN to continue its efforts toward reunification and North Korea to comply with UN objectives.

Over - Hiding U.S. opposition, the assembly condemned Portuguese colonial policy and urged UN members to break diplomatic relations and boycott trade with Portugal.

Tanned John D Home... To Re-Shuffle Cabinet

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet changes will push the Liberal Party to the right and shove the Canadian development corporation into limbo, Conservative Leader Diefenbaker predicted last night.

The 70-year-old chief held an impromptu press conference at the airport after returning here from a Caribbean cruise.

FULL OF PEP

Tanned and full of pep, he took up where he had left off 10 days ago—whacking Liberals in all directions.

He still insisted that former justice minister Guy Favreau should resign from the post of President of the Privy Council for misleading the Commons during the Dorion debate.

He insisted that there is more reason than ever to demand a full investigation into allegations of election irregularities in the Magdalen Islands.

And he took another swipe at the "furniture boys," former secretary of state Maurice Lamontagne and former postmaster-general Maurice Tremblay.

But it was when he discussed the new Pearson cabinet that he hit top form.

"Having regard to the material available the prime minister did the best he could under the circumstances," he chuckled. "Most of the changes were expected."

But the appointments of Mitchell Sharp (finance) and Robert Winters (trade and commerce) will cause a "very pronounced move to the right for the Liberal party."

'JOIN LIMBO'

"With Mr. Gordon gone, the Canadian Development Corporation idea will also be absent from the cabinet... it will join the limbo of departed things," he said.

The CDC was proposed by former Finance Minister Walter Gordon to encourage Canadians to invest in their own economy through purchase of its shares.

He was asked if he felt Prime Minister Pearson had "cleaned up the mess" with his cabinet reshuffle.

SEES NO ACTION

"I can see no such action, none whatsoever," he replied. He said he was amazed at the resignations of Mr. Tremblay and Lamontagne who were described as "the epitome of propriety a month ago during the election campaign."

After launching his usual attack against Mr. Favreau, he ripped into Forestry Minister Sauve who recently held a press conference to defend himself from allegations of election irregularities in the Magdalen Islands.

"The statement was so naive and so nebulous that it aroused a great many more questions than existed before he made it."

NEED INVESTIGATION

"There is more need than ever for an investigation beyond

STREETS CLEAR As Riots Hit

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI) — Rioting erupted anew in downtown Santo Domingo Tuesday for the third straight day. Motorists fled the area as street mobs threw garbage pails into the streets and erected barricades.

Scattered shots of downtown shops slammed shut as the disorders spread but Dominican police supported by Brazilian troops quickly broke up the scattered riots. There were no known casualties or arrests.

Port Alberni Party

Tribal Dances Part of Fare

PORT ALBERNI—Tribal dances and traditional chants will join the conventional Christmas tree and carols Thursday night as Indian families and their friends gather for their first Christmas party in the Port Alberni Friendship Centre.

Arrangements are proceeding well under the direction of Mrs. Alma Mack, the chairman of the Christmas party planners.

GOODIES PACKAGED
Candy canes and other goodies are being packaged for the youngsters, and other members of the group are busy baking for the event.

Dancers from as far away as Hesquiat are expected to help provide the entertainment.

"Only extremely bad weather could keep them away," said Mrs. Mack. Dancers and musicians from the other west coast tribes are also expected to be present.

As yet, the centre has no official source of funds, since any government grant will not be available until spring. Meanwhile, interested friends are trying to take up the slack, and gifts of candy, Christmas decorations and records have been received.

REPAIRS COMPLETED
Repairs to the furnace in the building have finally been completed, and the $70 the job costs has been a bad blow to the centre's budget.

Still, like many projects based on faith, the centre is making steady progress.

And what is lacking in funds is being made up in effort and imagination, with the youth group working hard last week to complete decorations for their own weekend dance, which have been left in place for the Thursday Christmas party.

Gordon Street Fees Will Stay

Lot 'Paying Its Way'

By PETER TAYLOR
NANAIMO—An appeal by Dr. Masden Zorkin for removal of parking fees on the Gordon Street parking lot has fallen on deaf ears.

Port Alberni

Joint Concert 'Not Unusual'

PORT ALBERNI—Tuesday night a school concert took place in Port Alberni that would have been unthinkable 15 years ago.

It combined the talents of both average and retarded children.

When this school district took over the responsibility for the school previously operated by the Retarded Children's Association they set a precedent by establishing the building on the grounds of Glenwood School.

INTEGRAL PART
The school, known as the Beaufort Building, is considered an integral part of Glenwood School. T. H. Piddock is the principal in charge of both buildings, with special teachers Mrs. Hope Potter and Mrs. Rose Norman conducting the retarded children's classes.

One PTA serves both groups. At lunch time, youngsters from the larger school are found offering their services to aid their handicapped friends, although little help is required since training in independence is basic in teaching the Beaufort youngsters.

FOR PARENTS
Tuesday night, the two groups of children performed for teachers and parents in their annual concert.

And no one in the group thought there was anything unusual about it.

Thief Keeps Same Hours

NANAIMO—Police are not certain of the exact time when $365 was taken from Northview Esso on North Terminal Avenue.

The till was robbed of $115 and another $750 was taken from a bank deposit case.

The service station is open 24 hours a day.

Courtenay

Santa Pays Visit To Council

COURTENAY—Santa was a visitor to city council chambers Monday and ho-ho'd his way around the council table with gifts for the aldermen, city staff and guests. Santa was well-known "Century Sam," Sid Williams, former alderman.

In regular business a gift of $25 for Glacier View Home was received from Campbell River Women's Institute.

A request for full-width paving on Hartman Avenue from the school board office past the high school was received from the school board.

This matter was referred to the works committee for investigation.

Clerk-administrator William Moore reported that nearly 20 home-owners have failed to claim their home-owner's grant despite the fact they have been notified. He said they have until Dec. 31 to take action on the matter.

MORT TAXES PAID
Mr. Moore reported one good point, when he told aldermen that 96 per cent of taxes had been paid.

Two requests for rezoning were received and rejected. Joe Christie, who wished to have his tire business location rezoned, was refused and told he could appeal to the advisory planning board. A request from Dawson's Marine Grocery received similar treatment.

Council received a letter from Dan Campbell which advised changes had been made in the hiring of men under the winter works program in regards to the government's share which allows a man to be hired if his unemployment benefits have run out.

Court of revision will sit Feb. 2 at the courthouse according to a letter received from assessment commissioner Percy Wright.

PROJECT DELAYED
Monday he announced a delay in the project.

"Because he has found some difficulties with his project, I don't think he should blame city council or the property owner," Ald. MacDonald said.

SECOND DECK
"Why weren't these things worked out before he started, they need parking that they can command. Why didn't they make a proposal to build a second deck on the parking lot which they could have for their own use."

POLICING PROBLEM
"If the charge was taken off, immediately you'd get a policing problem. If you didn't it would be full of employees' cars, and the taxpayers would have to pay for this policing."

"It's not making money now, but at least it's paying its way," Ald. MacDonald added.

Schools Outline Systems

Programs Clarified for Courtenay Parents

COURTENAY—A roundup of school activities was presented by school superintendent C. E. Ritchie at the school board meeting this week.

Several schools are busy explaining to parents the continuous promotion system, sometimes known as the levels system or ungraded class system. The program was introduced to the schools this fall in Grades 1 to 3 inclusive. Mr. Ritchie said the program would be expanded to include grades up to 7 next year.

PLACEMENT PROBLEMS
Pupil mobility is preventing some problems in placement. It was noted that of 51 pupils in Grade 7 only 19 started in one of the two Courtenay elementary schools. This attributed to movement of RCAF families and transient labor.

The primary language arts course was explained to Comox parents who also received the report cards for their children.

A recommendation from Mr. Ritchie which would have sent Stan Rowe, maintenance superintendent, to Toronto in January was left to the incoming board for decision.

It was suggested that he attend the Canadian education showcase where school design, equipment and furnishings are displayed.

A tender of $21,437 for additions and renovations to the school board office was received from Harrison and Longland.

It was not accepted as the tender was above the amount allowed in the referendum. The architects will be asked to investigate ways of paring the cost to make the tender acceptable.

Plans for the new senior high complex were discussed with two types of buildings examined.

After a lengthy discussion, trustees decided to use a ranch-style patio arrangement rather than the conventional two-story institutional type structure.

"One of the main factors influencing the decision was costs on either type would be relatively close."

POOR LIGHTING
The jury said the accident was caused by a combination of poor lighting conditions and very inadequate lighting. There was no negligence on the part of the driver.

The jury recommended "most strongly":

● The city install adequate lighting on the west side of Nicol from Terminal to Finlayson.

● Survey lighting on the east side of Nicol.

● Install a flashing warning light at the Crace and Nicol intersection.

● The jury "deplored" lack of pedestrian crossing signs at this and other locations.

● Asked that all pedestrian crossings be clearly marked, painted and signed.

BUILDING ISLANDS
After his talk he showed a movie film including scenes of trucks dumping loads every three seconds to build the islands for the fair in the St. Lawrence.

Before leaving club members were given an opportunity to voice their opinion on the film by filling out forms provided by Mr. Elliott.

HALF FROM U.S.
He said 30,000,000 people are expected to go through the turnstiles, 50 per cent of them from the United States.

Spacious New Nanaimo Quarters

Board Moving Today

NANAIMO—School board staff here is moving into new $35,000 quarters today.

In making the move, the working space will be enlarged from the 2,560 square feet at the present office on Selby Street to almost triple the space on Wakefield Avenue.

The new board office spreads over 6,840 square feet and has been designed in an L-shape by architects Barley and Weismiller.

One section of the L houses the bookkeepers, stenographers and staff of administrator Jim McPherson plus the board room.

From lack of space in the past, the school board has not been able to meet in the board office, but has held its meetings in Quennell School.

Now the board will have a high ceilinged, well-ventilated room, carpet on the floor and oak paneling around the walls.

The northern section consists of two stories. The bottom half consists of a special mimeographing room and the engineering department.

UPSTAIRS OFFICES
Upstairs are nine different rooms for the superintendent of education and his departmental supervisors.

The new office is built adjacent to the senior high school grounds, and altogether contains 20 different rooms.

Heating is by oil and hot water.

Quinney and Fuller Construction Ltd., were the contractors.

NANAIMO—Noel McLaren was elected president of Branch 26 Royal Canadian Legion this week.

Other members of the executive elected with him were Fred Hedley, first vice-president; Ed Johnson, second vice-president; Mrs. Joan Bennett, secretary; Mrs. Mary English, assistant secretary; Bill Flanagan, treasurer; Frank Hodgson, service officer; Canon G. H. Greenhalgh and Rev. Dennis Mahood, padres; Jim Johnstone, sergeant-at-arms; and executive officers Fred Fulla, Alec Thorpe, Hume Compton, Dick Winkelman, Ed Offin and Norm Walford.

Installation of these officers will take place at a special ceremony on Jan. 8.

The meeting decided to make any 35-year Legion member a life member.

Two Views of the Magic Season

A Few Days Before Christmas...

PORT ALBERT—Christmas comes but once a year, and for most busy people that's just about enough. By the Sunday before Christmas, many members of the family and unexpected guests have chomped their way through the reserve supplies of shortbread.

Mince tarts need baking, the boxes of decorations look old and tired.

Me too.

Tender Accepted

NANAIMO—B.C. Hydro has awarded a $242,883 contract to Canadian General Electric for eight 138,000-volt circuit breakers for various substations and generating plants, including the Jingle Pot substation near here.

Strathcona generating station near Campbell River and the Vancouver Island terminal substation north of Duncan will also get the important circuit breakers.

These are required for normal expansion within Hydro's transmission system.

DATED at Vancouver, British Columbia, this day of December, 1965.

"W. J. WALLACE"
SOLICITOR FOR THE APPLICANT
100-110 West Hastings Street,
Vancouver 2, B.C.

"Bunch of stupid nonsense," muttered, as I rattled with boots and sweater. "Why do I have to go along to get the tree? I could be getting something done here, not tramping through that wet mess... mumble, mumble, mumble..."

"Come on, Mrs. Scrooge," cries father, "Can't cut the tree without you?"

Off we went to the back acre. Over logs, almost into the creek. No one over 40 should try leaping streams in slippery rubber boots borrowed for the occasion.

"How about this one?" (Indicating a handsome little tree.)

"Too scrawny!" "It's got a bare spot."

At least eight more received the same treatment, before we found one decreed "not bad."

Home we went, by the road this time, dragging the axe, the tree and the three-year-old granddaughter, who had taken her whole trip into the dripping bush in wide-eyed silence.

Finally, on the back lawn, the base was off, the top tipped, and the tree held up for final inspection.

Not bad. Didn't seem very tall, though, only a couple of feet over father's head.

Small hand tugged at mine. I looked down at a rosy upturned face. "It's a big one," breathed the grandchild in awe. "Way up to the sky."

I took another look. It did seem taller.

We hauled it in the house, dripping water, pine needles and leaf mould from boots.

The dogs got into the spirit of things, dashing dumpy from hall to kitchen to living room, leaving foot-prints out of all proportion to size of dog.

It didn't really matter. The floors had to be done again anyway.

The tree-stand finally stayed together, the tree, spike in place on top, stood proudly in its place.

Everything else in the room was out of place, but that didn't seem to matter either. The annual small miracle was taking place.

The little hand tugged at mine again. "Isn't it the most beautiful tree in the whole world?" she beamed. And all of a sudden, I knew it was.

UNION BAY — The young couple looked almost frightened as they came into Edna's store on a storm-swept evening a few days before Christmas. In the woman's arms a baby pulled sleepily on a half-empty bottle.

They glanced at the toy display, then looked quickly at each other without speaking.

The man was nervous when he spoke.

"We've been thinking we would like to buy something for the children," he said, "but with a look of something like hope on his face he began to write — Susan, four; Billy, six;

The woman's tired face was gentle — "but we haven't much money to spend."

"How many children have you?" I said.

"Oh, they're not our children," the young father said, "they are our neighbors' children who come and visit us... and there are fifteen of them."

"Have you a list of their names and ages?"

"Well — no — we haven't got that far because we didn't know if we could afford it. We thought we would just look at things tonight and then see how far we can go."

Edna's eyes met mine and she gave an imperceptible nod. I reached for a price card, turned it over, gave him a pencil and Diane, three; Mary, five; Joanne, four; and so on until 15 names and ages had been listed.

Then we went to work. There were blocks for six, cut-out dolls for five, little boats for three and an animal picture book for one. The total was $7.21 with tax. They smiled at each other. They had enough — and could even add a pull-toy for their own child.

"We won't be getting anything for ourselves," the man said as I wrapped each gift separately in bright holly paper, "but we did want to have something under the Christmas tree for the kids who come to visit us."

"You'll be getting plenty," I said, "maybe there are people who will feel you are getting more for Christmas than they'll ever have!"

They left the store with the man proudly holding the parcel of sixteen gifts and the woman carrying the now-sleeping babe with the empty bottle clasped in his hands.

At the door they turned together, waved and smiled.

The southeast gale roared around them, the driving rain slashed at their clothing and from the darkness outside we could hear the sound of breakers crashing along the beach.

NANAIMO — Nanaimo Bulldozing has been awarded a $102,000 contract to prepare the site for construction of western terminus of the B.C. Hydro submarine connection between the Island and the mainland.

The 32-acre area is located on the Island Highway north of Duncan.

A three-storey structure will be built next year.

Icebox Raid Case Will Go to Judge

DUNCAN — At Duncan court house Reginald Thomas Wood came before Magistrate Lance Heard for preliminary hearing on a charge of wilful damage over $50, and was committed to stand trial at the next assizes, by judge without a jury as he elected.

Wood was represented by A. I. McDonald, and F. S. Green was counsel for the crown. The charges were that on May 21 at the Alderlea Boarding House, Trunk Road, Duncan, the accused had damaged a refrigerator, by breaking the hinges and the fittings inside.

Another boarder, Noel Wackett, said on hearing a noise about 4 p.m. he had gone downstairs and found a mess of food all over the kitchen, and on going into an adjoining pantry, where the locked door had been broken in, had found "Danny" squashing eggs on the floor."

TAKE IT EASY
He saw other food on the floor and the refrigerator door was open. He told Wood to take it easy and tried to get him to go away with him, he said.

Ralph Kraft said that he also had been in his room upstairs and heard the noise. He went down and noticed the damaged door and the mess and saw several men at the front door.

Mrs. Yvonne Baker gave evidence that she had been in charge of the Alderlea May 22 to 24.

She gave testimony to arriving around 6 a.m. on Sunday to find the place "a shambles." She called the police, and Const. John Charles McDairmid gave evidence of having investigated the circumstances at the Alderlea.

Also in council business: Jimmy Soome asked for the rezoning of the corner of View and Needham Streets to neighborhood shopping, because he wants to build a $20,000 corner store.

DUNCAN — Kokalah resident Clarence Daniels was fined $200 after pleading guilty to impaired driving and driving a car without licence plates.

Police told court the plates had been seized the previous day following an accident.

Kenneth Morrison of Cowichan Bay was fined $40 for driving without due care and attention.

Court learned he had fallen asleep at the wheel of his car.

New Church, Old Customs

ALBERTA — Christmas services being held in Christ the King Lutheran church on Johnson Road for the first time since the congregation was organized this fall, will follow, in some ways, old time and old country traditions.

On Christmas Eve, a family carol service will be held with youngsters from the Sunday school in a nativity tableau.

The first service Christmas morning will be at 6 a.m., a custom in Scandinavian countries, according to pastor R. R. Robb.

"In fact in some places Christmas Eve celebrations are the really gay ones, and it was not unusual for some of the churchgoers to drop in on their way home for the morning church service, along with the early risers," the minister smiled.

A second Christmas service will be held for the newly-formed congregation at 11 a.m.

First wedding in the new church will also take place before the old year ends, when Diane Kevis and Tom Devereaux are married by Pastor Robb on New Year's Eve.

Good King Wenceslas a Swinger?

LONDON (AP)—Take a recording of Good King Wenceslas made at 33 1/2 revolutions per minute, play it at 78 r.p.m. and enjoy a good twist. That's just about the way it should sound, says Elizabeth Poston, a British composer and expert on medieval music.

Miss Poston has strong views on the things that have happened to carols through the centuries, especially Wenceslas.

Should Be, Says Briton

She says carols were originally intended for dancing. They were folk songs and not necessarily religious.

The medieval clergy decided that dancing in church would not do, so carols went underground. They survived precisely for hundreds of years in remote villages.

Then carols came back—with a whimper—under Victorian revivalists who took the tunes, wrote their own words and loaded down the result with church harmonies.

This is what happened to Wenceslas. The tune, once a splendidly gay and virile dance measure, dates from the 13th century, says Miss Poston.

The words were written in 1853 by Dr. John Mason Neale. Miss Poston, in a foreword to the Penguin Book of Christmas Carols, describes his grafting operation as "the dreariest of travesties."

Lotsa Calls

We're Big Talkers

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C. Telephone Company expects British Columbians will place more than 230,000 long-distance calls during Christmas Day—an average of nearly 10,000 an hour and about twice the number of a normal business day.

Fifty to 60 per cent of these will be completed—as people across the country compete for available circuits.

The company expects about half the calls placed to go through direct distance dialing (DDD) facilities. The other half will be handled by the largest operator staff employed by the company on any Christmas day in several years—a total of 1,335 in offices throughout the province.

Last Christmas Day, B.C. Telephone operators handled 96,450 long-distance calls and 101,560 were placed through DDD facilities.

In Victoria, 127 operators—seven more than last Christmas Day—will be required to man the boards through the day. In Kamloops, 57 will work, compared with 46; in Trail 39 compared to 25; in Nelson 37 compared to 31 and in Cranbrook 35 compared to 29.

The rapid growth of northern B.C. is reflected in the growth in number of telephone operators on duty in Prince George—96 this Christmas Day against 55 a year ago.

Scruffy-Haired Poet A-Go-Go's Ginsberg

By TONY DILLON-DAVIS

The scruffy-haired youth strides forward, stick in hand, to the microphone.

His hair long, beard scruffy, and the way he looks at you from the stage makes you think he is just God... or a disaster.

It is Keith Neville-Smith, a 19-year-old from bohemian Yorkville, a section of Toronto where pseudo-beats abound.

He reads poetry, and a jazz group swings in to give him musical backing.

His dulcet tones proclaim the no-hope-for-man philosophy of best poet Allan Ginsberg to the crowds at the A-Go-Go.

He was there Sunday, and he'll be there again Wednesday, at the A-Go-Go's folk night.

Other performers Wednesday include guitarist-songstress Jane Lowman, and Blues X Five.

Police Seek Man's Killer

WINNIPEG (CP)—A 44-year-old man was found mortally wounded on a West Winnipeg Street Tuesday. Police, with no other clues to go on, were looking for the weapon that killed him.

The man was found lying on the street with a gunshot wound in the right side of his back.

"I saw his feet moving but I figured he was drunk so I passed him," said taxi driver Ralph Cook, who found the man lying on the street about 5 a.m.

Cook, however, turned his car around when he heard the man cry out: "Help me get to a hospital, I'm hurt. Help me... I am shot..."

Cook then picked the man up and drove him to the hospital. He died two hours later.

Some of Fund's Biggest Friends Are Littlest

Final Day to Help Fill 500 Stockings

Some of the biggest friends of the Colonist 500 Fund are also some of the littlest, and Tuesday they helped drive the fund to $13,143.80 — with just two days left to go.

Today, the fund is expected to surpass all previous years. It has never been as high on the second-last day as Tuesday's total of $13,143.80.

In 1961, best year until this, the final figure was $13,529 — thanks to donations of $3,464 on the last day.

"But back to the little friends who help so much." Since the 1965 fund began a few weeks ago, several groups of school children have exercised their ingenuity to raise money for Greater Victoria's poor at Christmas. (See picture, Page 16.)

The 500 Fund each year sends a gift of money to 500 of the area's most destitute families just in time to bring some light into their Christmas time.

Huge Lottery Raid

'Irish' Ring Broken Up

MONTREAL (CP) — Police who seized 5,000,000 Irish sweepstakes tickets valued at $17,000,000 Monday night, said Tuesday they have probably destroyed a lottery operation that extended throughout Canada and included parts of the United States.

Satellites Sprayed Askew

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The upper stage of a Titan III rocket hurled into orbit as a launching platform Tuesday, but misfired after six hours and sprayed a number of satellites into wrong orbits.

The air force reported the upper stage—called a transstage—failed to start its engines a third time.

The firing would have given a circular orbit at that altitude and the transstage then was to have ejected four satellites at about 30-second intervals.

Instead, the 15-foot transstage continued in a great looping orbital path ranging from 120 to 20,900 miles.

A combined force of Montreal and provincial police raided two suburban Montreal homes and seized the tickets and $100,000 in cash and cheques.

Provincial police officials described the operation as "definitely the largest lottery raid in . . . Quebec, at least—and perhaps in all of Canada."

MANY ARRESTS?

They said further investigations may lead to the arrest of "many people who were actually selling the tickets." Lists of the sellers also were seized in the raids, police said.

Officials said the two homes were the key distribution centres for Irish sweepstakes tickets. The distribution network, they continued, extended into all provinces and into the north-eastern United States.

Bennett Makes News Doesn't Read Papers

VANCOUVER (CP)—An eight-man jury was excused Tuesday until Jan. 10 in a slander case against Premier Bennett.

Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes adjourned the Supreme Court to hear arguments on a motion by George E. P. Jones, former chairman of the B.C. purchasing commission.

FORCED TO RETIRE

Mr. Jones was forced in March by government legislation to retire. He says he was slandered by the premier March 5, 1965, and has since been unable to get another job.

Tom Berger, Jones' lawyer, has said the premier said in the speech: "I'm not going to say anything about the Jones boy. I won't talk about it but I could say a lot. I just want to assure you the position taken by the government was the right one."

Mr. Berger alleged innuendo in the premier's remarks left Jones victim of rumor and speculation. It did incalculable damage and Jones had not been able to get a job since he was removed from his job by an act of the legislature.

Defence counsel George Murray asked Mr. Justice McInnes to rule whether these words in their natural and ordinary sense are capable of defamatory meaning and whether they are capable of bearing a particular meaning in the plaintiff's pleading of innuendo.

JURY ABSENT

He made the request in a motion while the jury was absent and said he will call no evidence in the slander case. He said if the ruling was in the defence's favor the case would be dismissed.

Mr. Berger read portions of his examination of the premier Nov. 25 in Victoria at a pre-trial hearing.

OIL BAN GETS NOD

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's oil embargo on Rhodesia was approved by a 228-vote majority in the Commons early today in a vote forced by a small group of Conservative opposition members.

Regulations enforcing the ban were passed by 276 votes to 48 — figures reflecting the extent of the so-called "Rhodesian lobby" among Conservatives who oppose strong measures against Rhodesia.

FORCED VOTE

The right wing Conservative group forced the vote against their party leaders' wishes, and most of the 303 Conservative members abstained from voting.

Government supporters cheered when Cledwyn Hughes, minister of state for Commonwealth relations, disclosed that the United States has instructed an American oil company to divert a tanker due in Beira, Mozambique, today with a cargo of crude oil for Rhodesia.

GOOD RESPONSE

Hughes said the response of other governments has also been encouraging.

Earlier, the government won a 27-vote majority endorsement of its handling of the Rhodesia crisis.

This vote, 299 to 272, was forced by the Conservatives on a technical point to underline their mounting criticism of Prime Minister Wilson's Rhodesia policies.

SETS DOWN TERMS

Wilson told Parliament steps are being taken to give the British governor in Rhodesia, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, detailed terms on which he could start discussions with Prime Minister Ian Smith or any other Rhodesian leader.

"The governor is willing to discuss, even with the illegal regime, the mechanism by which Rhodesia can be returned to legal rule," Wilson said.

MAJOR POINTS

The prime minister also made these major points in a 90-minute speech:

● Britain will not by itself call for a naval blockade of the port of Beira in Portuguese Mozambique, even if the oil embargo against Rhodesia is broken through that territory.

● Britain would be willing to take part in an international plan to protect the Kariba Dam

Wilson to Pay Visit To Kremlin Feb. 21

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Wilson announced in the Commons Tuesday he will visit Moscow Feb. 21 to 24 at the Soviet Union's invitation in a new effort to settle the Viet Nam war.

But a British official conceded there are no new developments to give any increased hope the latest British peace mission might succeed where its predecessors failed.

The Associated Press reported that Soviet Premier Kosygin, without committing himself to a precise date, was said by qualified diplomats to have undertaken in principle to come to Britain some time next fall.

Wilson said he has had a continuing exchange of messages with Kosygin.

He also told Parliament he now has U.S. President Johnson's solid support in any peace initiative Britain could take.

"He (Johnson) has his duty to do, but at the same time it is quite wrong to suggest he is not keen to get a peaceful and honorable settlement in Viet Nam."

Wilson said he has had a continuing exchange of messages with Kosygin.

He also told Parliament he now has U.S. President Johnson's solid support in any peace initiative Britain could take.

Wilson said he has had a continuing exchange of messages with Kosygin.

He also told Parliament he now has U.S. President Johnson's solid support in any peace initiative Britain could take.

"He (Johnson) has his duty to do, but at the same time it is quite wrong to suggest he is not keen to get a peaceful and honorable settlement in Viet Nam."

Retirement Out Of Question

MONTREAL (CP)—A chipper John Diefenbaker brushed off any thoughts of retirement when reporters raised the subject Tuesday.

The Conservative chief, now 70, told questioners on his return from a Caribbean vacation.

"This retirement business is something that comes up repeatedly whenever there is a lack of matters to be discussed."

Mr. Diefenbaker reflected a moment and, with a twinkle in his eye, added: "In 1965, Mr. Pearson, the prime minister, also will qualify for the old age pension."

Listen to the MPs

MONTREAL (CP)—Georges Valade, the only Progressive Conservative candidate to win a Montreal seat at the last general election, Tuesday night criticized John Diefenbaker after the Conservative leader's stopover here.

"Mr. Diefenbaker should listen a little less to some of his Quebec friends who have never been elected and never will be elected," said Mr. Val-ade, who was not among a group at the airport to meet Mr. Diefenbaker on his return from a Caribbean vacation.

Mr. Valade said Mr. Diefenbaker should listen more to the eight Conservatives actually elected from Quebec.

Re-elected member for Montreal Ste. Marie Nov. 8, Mr. Valade said, there are "serious flaws" in the party structure in Quebec.

He and the other Conservative MPs from Quebec want a structure "more democratically and systematically organized."

He said he was not invited to meet Mr. Diefenbaker, when he passed through here.

The Montreal member—the only Conservative out of 21 MPs from Montreal Island—said the absence of such an invitation is an example of the flaws in the Quebec Conservative organization.
